Tener Investigates

MASSACRE 10,000

BASEBALL INQUIRY IN BOSTON

Stirred to action by the attack of Umpire Quigley on Johnnie Evers of the Braves at yesterday's ball game, President Tener of the National League is hurrying to Boston to probe the matter to the bottom. He left New York on the 10 o'clock train and will arrive at Fenway Park a few minutes after the game begins this afternoon.

In his pocket President Tener has the report of Umpire Quigley, giving his version of the trouble which resulted in his striking Evers on the neck with his fist at yesterday's game. Also he has the charges against Quigley filed by telegraph by President Gaffney and Manager Stallings of the Braves.

TENER ON WAY.

Before leaving New York today President Tener got Mr. Gaffney on the long distance telephone and asked if the Boston club owner could produce witnesses to back up his charges. When Gaffney replied in the affirmative, Tener said:

"I'll come to Boston as fast as I can get there. I am leaving on the 10 o'clock train."

Until President Tener has investigated the matter it is impossible to forecast what action he will take. It is possible that his decision may mean the end of Quigley as a National League umpire. This official is unsatisfactory to many club owners, managers and players of the National League, and with the pennant races as close as it is, they feel there may be repetitions of the disgraceful scene such as was enacted at Fenway Park yesterday.

WHAT BOTH MEN SAY.

President Tener may, however, accept the umpire's version of the trouble and punish Evers. Or both Quigley and Evers may be fined or suspended.

Umpire Quigley, when seen today, said:

"I have been trying today to dismiss this matter from my mind. It is very unpleasant. Likewise unfortunate. I don't think it would be good form for me to discuss the merits of this affair.

"The official version of the incident is already on file in the president's office in New York, or at least it ought to be.

"This is another case of where somebody has to suffer the odium, and naturally the umpire is the one selected by fate. That is one of the unfortunate phases of an umpire's life. I regret very much that this thing happened. It is bad for baseball.

"Many things happen on the diamond on the spur of the moment which are injurious to the game, some of which cannot seem to be avoided.

"The report that another player pulled my feet is not true. I don't see how that started."

When asked if he had struck Evers, Umpire Quigley said he must decline to discuss the case in detail.

"It's a new one on me to get hit

Turks Torture and Slay Christians in Armenia and Cast Bodies Into Tigris

FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, July 23.—More than 10,000 Armenians have been massacred by the Turks in the worst slaughter of Christians ever recorded, according to advices received by the Novoe Vremy.

The scene of the massacre was at Bitlis and in the surrounding district west of Lake Van, Turkish Armenia.

After looting and burning homes of Christians in Bitlis and torturing or killing many of the residents of that city, the Turks gathered 9,000 men, women and children from the nearby villages and drove them more than thirty miles to the banks of the Tigris where all were shot. Their bodies were thrown into the river.

Another thousand who had escaped the first slaughter were later dragged from their places of refuge and also put to death.

Lansing to Visit Colonel E. M. House

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Secretary of State Lansing is preparing to visit Colonel E. M. House at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Lansing. It is expected that Secretary Lansing and Colonel House will canvass the international situation and that they will communicate with President Wilson during his stay in New Hampshire.

British Release 2 Liners from U. S.

LONDON, July 23.—The Danish steamer Fiordia, from Baltimore, and the Norwegian steamer Skogland, from New York, which were seized by British warships, have been released. The Danish steamship Louisiana, which arrived at Kirkwall, Scotland, last Saturday on her way to Copenhagen, has been detained by the British naval authorities.

1,000 Italians Sail on Ancona for Front

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—While their wives, sweethearts and mothers surged about the pier singing Italian patriotic airs and waving American and Italian flags, 1,000 reservists summoned from farms, factories and mines embarked on the liner Ancona for Naples by way of New York.

President Plans Return to Cornish

WASHINGTON, July 23.—President Wilson expected to leave for Cornish, N. H., short, to continue his vacation. Although the White House has not stated positively, it is believed he may leave Washington tonight.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP PLANT

BAYONNE, N. J., July 23.—Rioting was renewed at the Standard Oil strike early today and resulted in the wounding of two more strikers and four guards.

The two strikers who were shot as they attempted to approach the Tidewater plant to set it on fire were not seriously hurt, but the four guards are in a serious condition.

The wounded guards were smuggled out of the plant and nothing was known of their injuries until Chester Edwards, son of the general manager of the plant, announced that three of the victims had been taken to New York by boat and the fourth to a hospital in Jersey City.

Governor Fielder announced today at Trenton that he would not send State troops to Bayonne. Sheriff Kinkaid reported to the Governor that he had the situation well in hand.

While searchlights operated from vantage points within the twenty-six acre plant of the company prevented a general attack, sniping went on all night between the Standard Oil guards and the besieging strikers. Shortly after 2 o'clock this morning a score of men tried to reach the wall with oil-soaked waste which they intended to set on fire and throw into the plant.

They were betrayed by a searchlight and the guards opened fire. Two of the strikers fell, but their companions opened fire and retreated only after more than 300 shots had been fired.

DYNAMITE ATTEMPT.

For several hours there was quiet except for the occasional sniping efforts on the part of the strikers, many of whom have now obtained rifles, but about 7 o'clock another attack was made on the plant with the intention of blowing up the barrel factory.

Twenty-five strikers nearly reached the factory with more than fifty pounds of dynamite. They were only twenty feet from the factory walls when the guards discovered them and opened fire with riot guns loaded with buckshot.

The dynamiters fled as other guards

SHERIFF PLEADS WITH STRIKE CROWD

Deputy Sheriff Clark and (at right) Sheriff Eugene Kinkaid, the men in charge of the police in the Bayonne (N. J.) strike riots. Above, Sheriff Kinkaid, indicated by arrow, has ventured into the midst of the angry strikers and sympathizers at the gates of the oil plant and is trying to induce them to disperse.

BELIEVES TWO SONS SLAIN

Edward R. Bowley of No. 32 Vivian street, Lynn, declared today that he believed that his boys, Clarence and Daniel, whose bodies were found in Muddy River, in the Back Bay Fens, yesterday, were murdered.

Medical Examiner George H. Magrath said that the double tragedy was "very mystifying." He had already notified police headquarters that investigation should be begun. Inspector James Devnessey, who works on most of the homicide cases, started to probe the facts.

Dr. Magrath said that he had arranged for an autopsy and that he would present the matter to the court for an inquest.

The bodies were found one on each side of the Ipswich street bridge of the Boston & Albany Railroad, which crosses Muddy river. The question was immediately raised whether the boys had been stealing rides on a freight train and had jumped or been forced off at this point.

DR. MAGRATH'S STATEMENT.

Dr. Magrath goes into that theory in a brief statement, as follows:

"There is no external evidence of foul play, but the cases are very mystifying. Both boys were found within a short distance from each other, both with spectacles on. I cannot say whether the boys were pushed, thrown, jumped or fell from a Boston & Albany train. I shall make an investigation and present

BOY ROLLS UNDER CAR UNHURT

William Simpson, eleven years, was hurled under the front of a moving electric car, which collided with a team on which he was riding in Newspaper Row today. When the car finally slid to a full stop, several yards beyond the place where the boy disappeared, and the crowd ran out, the little chap rolled out, covered with dirt, too frightened even to cry, but unhurt.

As near as could be figured out, he had rolled under the moving car, slipping just in back of the fender. His outstretched arms struck a brakerod or something underneath, and he froze to it, being dragged along the freshly watered and slippery street, his body separated from the wheels of the car by only the board across the front of the forward trucks.

The driver of the D. S. Quirk Company team, who had been sitting side of the boy, was knocked to the street also, landing at the horse's heels. The horse was thrown, and horse, man and teem dragged along by the car, which seemed unable to stop on the wet rails.

The man and boy were taken to the Relief Station, the man suffering from possible internal injuries and the boy mostly from fright.

81st Birthday of Cardinal Gibbons Today

BALTIMORE, July 23.—Cardinal Gibbons celebrated his eighty-first birthday today. As in preceding years he passed the day at the home of T. Herbert Shriver, Union Mills, near Westminster. He is fond of this beautiful country place and often goes there for quiet and rest. Messages of congratulation have come from all parts of the country.

The Cardinal, despite his advanced years, is still very active. There is no apparent letting up in regular routine of his daily life. A short time ago he showed the effects of the strain due in the first hot weather, and was indisposed for a few days. Now he has regained his full vigor and goes about his business affairs with all the promptness and regularity of earlier years.

William M. Ivins, Noted New York Lawyer, Is Dead

NEW YORK, July 23.—William Mills Ivins, a Republican leader and one of the leading attorneys of New York city, died suddenly shortly after midnight from an acute attack of Bright's disease and uraemic poisoning.

Mr. Ivins, who was born in New Jersey in 1851, was chief counsel for William Barnes in the $50,000 libel suit against Theodore Roosevelt recently tried at Syracuse.

During his lifetime Mr. Ivins held many public positions, being member of the New York City Board of Education, chamberlain of the city, judge advocate-general of the State, special counsel of the Public Service Commission and chairman of the New York Charter Commission. In 1905 he was Republican candidate for Mayor of New York.

American May Be Queen of Poland

PARIS, July 23.—The name of Prince Poniatowski has been mentioned frequently as the King of Poland in case the allies should win. This would be popular in France, but some fears are already making strong objections, as his wife is an American (formerly Miss Helen Sperry of Stockton, Cal.) and would not do as the Queen of Poland.

GERMANS 10 MILES FROM GOAL

By International News Service.

LONDON, July 23.—Austro-German troops of the armies of Field Marshal von Mackensen are now investing Novo Georgievsk, Warsaw and Ivangorod, three of the greatest fortresses in the world, and the mightiest battle in Poland continues with the utmost ferocity.

To the west of Warsaw the forces of Field Marshal von Hindenburg are only ten miles from the Polish capital.

Ponderous 17 and 20-inch howitzers are throwing shells into the Russian fortresses of Ivangorod, on the Vistula, south of Warsaw, and into the stronghold of Novo Georgievsk, on the Narew, north of Warsaw.

Fighting with their backs to the wall, the Russians are making their last desperate stand to save Warsaw.

With their fortifications under hot artillery fire, the Russians have to fight to save their trenches from the Teutonic infantrymen.

RUMOR OF CITY'S FALL.

Berlin has received an report to the effect that Warsaw has actually fallen, and another that the German commander before Warsaw has demanded the surrender of the city with warning that it will be bombarded in 24 hours. Neither of these reports has any official basis point out that the fall of Warsaw may not be expected immediately, as the official reports of the General Staff indicate that siege warfare has developed and this may delay operations. It might take some time to reduce the Russian forts at Novo Georgievsk and Ivangorod, and in the meantime the Polish capital would probably be safe unless the German armies of General von Gallwitz and General von Woyrsch are able to break through from the north or south to cut the railroad communications of the Russians behind Warsaw.

GERMANS NOW BUT 10 MILES FROM WARSAW

All German military men, Berlin dispatches say, are confident that Warsaw will fall and that a complete victory for the Teutons is certain.

HEAVY ARTILLERY FIRE.

Terrific battles are in progress on the arc immediately surrounding Warsaw, while in the north on the shores of the Baltic, the retreating Russians are putting up strong rear guard action against the troops of General von Buelow. The Russian guns in the fortresses are pouring a continuous rain of shells against the besieging forces, but the German artillery fire is growing stronger as more and more heavy guns reach the front. The movement of the big cannon has been very difficult on account of the marshy condition of the ground over which the guns must be transported.

Dispatches to German newspapers say that all official documents have been removed from Riga to Petrograd, and that thousands of citizens are fleeing. The officials have received orders to be ready to leave Riga when General von Buelow's German army arrives, it is said.

Whether or not the Germans will try to storm Ivangorod at the point of the bayonet or reduce it methodically with their artillery is a military secret. Should the Germans mask it the Russian forces of General Ivanoff, that retired from the fortress, would be completely cut off from the main army of Ivangorod, which guards the southern approach to Warsaw by way of the Vistula Valley, fifty miles south of the Polish capital.

Ivangorod is a fortress of the first class, being surrounded by twelve powerful forts. Nine are on the west bank of the Vistula and three on the east bank.

LUBLIN BATTLE DECISIVE.

Petrograd dispatches say that with the Russians holding back the Germans along the Narew river front the battle now raging in the Lublin district is expected to be the decisive conflict, determining the fate of Ivangorod and Warsaw. Preparations for a siege operation of both these fortresses have been completed, but the Russian military experts still see hope ten for a repulse of Field Marshal von Mackensen's army in the south.

A dispatch from Vienna to the National Zeitung of Berlin says the final attempt of the Russians to stop the advance of their opponents in the critical battle on the new line southward of the Lublin-Cholm railroad, southeast of Warsaw, has ended in failure.

REPORT TEUTON REVERSE.

On the other hand, a dispatch from Tarnow, via Innsbruck and Geneva, says that, rallying from the blows of Field Marshal Von Mackensen's army, the Russians on the Wieprz River in Southern Poland have driven the Germans back eight miles north of Krasnostaw, inflicting losses of 13,000 men. The Germans began the attack with heavy forces, the dispatch says, but the Russians developed violent counter attacks which dislodged the Teutonic forces from their positions.

The same message states that the Austrians north of the Wolika were vigorously attacked by the Russians and forced back five miles. The Russians are said to be inflicting severe losses upon the Germanic forces in the region of Sokol.

The Austro-German forces on the Narew have occupied a number of Russian villages, the Tarnow dispatch admits.

According to a Paris story, Emperor William has ordered Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Field Marshal von Mackensen to capture Warsaw by August 1, in order to enable Germany to celebrate the first anniversary of the war with a great victory.

Pope Informed on American Sentiment

By International News Service.

BERLIN, July 23.—The Overseas News Agency today gave out the following dispatch from Lugano, Switzerland:

"Well informed Catholic circles assert the Pope is regularly informed by Cardinal Gibbons about the status of the German-American relations and popular sentiment in America.

"The President is expected to end all diplomatic relations if Germany forces a breach, and to do nothing else. At the same time, the extreme politeness and reasonableness of the President's note is expected to prevent a breach.

"The Imperial Government is not under the necessity of making any apologies for what she has already done, or of giving any written or verbal guarantees, or of furnishing immediate reparation, monetary or otherwise, for the Lusitania.

"All that she is required to do is to abstain from any further act of that character if friendship is to be maintained.

"In the event that the status quo is maintained, however, and there are indications through official or unofficial channels that German submarines in the future will conform to the rules of international law in saving the lives of Americans on unresisting merchantmen, the President will take up very soon the situation that has arisen with Great Britain over the unlawful interference with American commerce by the Allies, and will press that issue.

"It is thought by some officials that if there should be another marine disaster involving the loss of American lives the President would be advised by the State Department that it could no longer handle the matter and that Congress should be called in extra session.

Too Nervous To Drive a Car?

That's too bad, old man, but you know nervousness is largely due to wrong habits of eating and drinking. If you would quit coffee and use Postum your nerves would steady up.

Postum tastes much like fine, mild Java but there's no drug in it—that's where it's got coffee beat a mile.

Sound advice.

More and more, people are waking up to the harmful effects of caffeine—the drug in coffee—a frequent cause of nervousness, heart flutter, dizziness, headache, and other ailments.

Instant Postum

is the soluble form of the original Postum Cereal. A level teaspoonful of the crystaline powder in a cup of hot water makes a delicious food-drink instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The convenience of Instant Postum is seen at a glance, but some prefer the original Postum Cereal which must be thoroughly boiled—15c and 25c packages. Grocers sell both kinds and the cost per cup is about the same.

A change from coffee to Postum has been a good thing for thousands.

World's Series Coupon

Series E, No. 6 BOSTON AMERICAN JULY 23, 1915

Good for 1 One Vote

This Coupon will not be counted unless presented at the World's Series Contest Headquarters, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, or mailed to that address on or before 5 o'clock p. m., July 31, 1915.

HOW TO SEND VOTE COUPONS—At the end of the fifth contest period (series "E") readers will notice that series, then put all your "Series E, No. 1's" coupons together, tie or fasten them in some manner and attach a slip of paper showing the number of "Series E, No. 1's" contained. Do the same with "Series E, No. 2's" coupons, and so on, including "Series E, No. 5," the last one of that series. Then wrap them all in one bundle and write or stamp on the outside of this bundle your name and address and the numbers of consecutive sets said to be contained therein. Separate bundles in the same manner as directed above for coupons of the other seven series.

AMERICAN BARK SEIZED BY GERMANY

BERLIN, July 23.—(Bulletin.)—The American bark Dunsyre, bound from New York to Stockholm, has been seized by the Germans and taken into Swinemunde.

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The new American note to Germany is in Berlin.

The United States government is now considering the limit of action in the event that Germany again commits such an "unfriendly act" as sinking an unarmed merchant ship having Americans on board without the warning required by international law.

The United States note informs the Imperial German government that any repetition of the incident in future will be regarded as "an unfriendly act." This warning is, in fact, the only new phase of the note.

"The United States can now do only one of two things," said a high official, "if there should be another tragedy.

"(1) It can at once break diplomatic relations, or

"(2) The President can refer the matter to Congress, which alone has power to proclaim war for the United States.

"The President is expected to end all diplomatic relations if Germany forces a breach, and to do nothing else. At the same time, the extreme politeness and reasonableness of the President's note is expected to prevent a breach.

The Imperial Government is not under the necessity of making any apologies for what she has already done, or of giving any written or verbal guarantees, or of furnishing immediate reparation, monetary or otherwise, for the Lusitania.

All that she is required to do is to abstain from any further act of that character if friendship is to be maintained.

In the event that the status quo is maintained, however, and there are indications through official or unofficial channels that German submarines in the future will conform to the rules of international law in saving the lives of Americans on unresisting merchantmen, the President will take up very soon the situation that has arisen with Great Britain over the unlawful interference with American commerce by the Allies, and will press that issue.

It is thought by some officials that if there should be another marine disaster involving the loss of American lives the President would be advised by the State Department that it could no longer handle the matter and that Congress should be called in extra session.

Ford Says $500,000 House Is Too Costly

DETROIT, July 23.—Henry Ford, on the witness stand in the United States Court, outlined the details of the building of his Dearborn residence. The testimony was in the case brought against him by Vanhoek & Pyle, architects, whom he discharged. He said $560,000 was too much to pay for a home, and when he found that the plans selected called for that amount he ordered a change, cutting about $275,000 from the cost.

Former Member of 9th Is War Victim

Archie C. Hall of Lynn, twenty-four, a former member of the Ninth Regiment, M. V. M., was killed on May 27 by the explosion of a German shell in the Canadian trenches in France, according to a letter from a sergeant of his company just received by his mother, Mrs. Lydia Hall of No. 2 Brookline avenue, Lynn.

Another son of Mrs. Hall was drowned in Lynn April 17.

Fined for Keeping a Dog That Bites

John Mitchell of Dorchester avenue, South Boston, was charged in the local court today with keeping a biting dog and was fined $5. It was alleged that Mitchell's dog had bitten five-year-old Morris Barron of No. 132 Dorchester avenue. An additional charge of keeping an unlicensed dog was filed.

the matter to the court for an inquest.

The significance of the spectacles is this: In the long list of suicides on record at the medical examiner's office, there is not one of a known suicide found with glasses on. Every suicide wearing glasses removed them before taking his or her life.

"MURDERED," SAYS FATHER.

The boys' father goes much further than Dr. Magrath does. He said:

"I am firmly convinced, after viewing the bodies of my boys, that they were murdered.

"I believe they were struck over the head with weighting bars or thrown off a train into Muddy River. The police should question the brakemen of the Boston & Albany freight trains passing over Muddy River bridge Wednesday night.

"I cannot believe for a moment that the boys met death accidentally. Both were familiar with riding on freight trains, nor know how to handle themselves on the road. Both boys and myself had traveled thousands of miles on freight trains during times when we were seeking work.

"They were sturdy lads and, although quiet, would give a good account of themselves if hard pressed.

"Myoide at boy, Clarence, was alive Tuesday at 10:30 p. m., for he mailed a postal card at that time to Miss Florence Prescott of Lynn, his sweetheart, in which he said he was leaving Pittsfield for Fitchburg to join the 101 Ranch show, which was going from Fitchburg to South Framingham."

Strike Hearings Will Be Public

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 23.—For the first time in the history of the city of Providence, the chamber of the City Council is to be thrown open for public hearings on questions of arbitration, following the recommendation made by Mayor Gainer, regarding the recent car strike. Starting next Monday morning, the chamber will be thrown open, following requests from the union men, that the hearings be held in public. Hearings will be held daily except Saturday and Sunday, from 10 to 12 and from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Plot Feared at Bridgeport Factory

By International News Service

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., July 23.—Belief that damage will be attempted against the Remington-U. M. C. plants in this city brought into the city early this morning under cover of darkness several detectives and confidential agents.

President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and other labor officials from Washington and New York arrived here today at 10:30 a. m. Mr. Gompers would make no statement, and at once went into conference with local and other labor officials.

Labor officials here think the actual papers will be ratified in the settlement of all conditions late today.

"Any recognition of the union," said Vice-President Keppler when asked about it. "Why, no. Why quibble over the shadow when we have the substance?" he answered.

This is taken to mean that the Remington-U. M. C. people have signed an agreement with the union officials for eight hours a day, 20 per cent. increase in wages and an assurance of more than a temporary issue, but do not recognize a closed shop.

"New Haven, Ct., or Springfield, Mass., will be the next move for an eight hours day," said Vice-President Johnson of the Structural Iron Workers this morning. "We are going after the Winchester shop in New Haven."

It is conservatively estimated that more than 200 detectives and confidential agents are now working in the city. More than fifty came in during the night. This is additional to 700 guards at the Remington-U. M. C. works, and more will be added before night.

War on every machine shop in New England will be declared by Monday, with the clearing away of the details of the settlement of the Remington-U. M. C. strike here.

City and County Employes Increased

There are 282 more employes on the pay roll of the city of Boston this year than last, and sixty-four more in Suffolk County, according to a printed volume issued today, containing lists of all city and county officials and employes. For 1914 the total number of city officials and employes on the Boston pay roll was 14,014, as against 14,296 this year, and the county total was 696 as against 760 this year.

Increase in Boston Tax Rate Doubtful

Edward B. Dally, chairman of the Board of Assessors of Boston, today denied that an increase in Boston's tax rate from $17.50 to $18 was certain.

"Mayor Curley is the only one who can determine that matter," added Chairman Dally. "The Mayor is the watchdog of the city treasury and what he says about the tax rate will go. To say that the rate will or will not be increased is mere guesswork."

Melrose Tax Rate $2 More Than Last Year

Melrose tax rate is to be $23.70 per $1,000, an increase of $2. The realty valuation is $16,317,600, a gain of $258,350. There is also a gain of $17,700 in personal valuation, the amount being $2,823,750. The expenses for the year are $455,601.70, against $412,281.66 for last year.

Thaw Invites Concord Boy to Go on Auto Trip

CONCORD, N. H., July 23.—Harry K. Thaw of Pittsburgh wrote a letter to Eral Pendleton, seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Pendleton of this city, asking Pendleton to accompany him on an auto trip to the Pacific exposition. The boy has accepted.

With the letter, Thaw sent a sum of money to defray expenses to Pittsburgh and to provide necessities.

Thaw also promised to send the boy to the preparatory school at Washington, D. C., in the Fall, which will fit him for Annapolis.

When Thaw was at Gorham, N. H., Pendleton spent three weeks with him, explaining how to handle an automobile. Thaw was very much impressed with the interest shown, and promised, if he ever got his liberty, to do something for Pendleton.

Germans Fail to Get Any British Vessel in Week

LONDON, July 23.—For the first time since the outbreak of the war the Germans have failed for a full week to sink any British ship, either by mine, cruiser or submarine.

During the week under review 1,326 vessels of more than 300 tons each arrived or departed from ports of the United Kingdom.

Several ships, however, have been pursued and attacked.

opened fire with heavier guns, and all are believed to have escaped injury.

Sheriff Kinkaid is trying to hold down violence with a force of 200 special deputies. These men have established a dead line at the main entrance of the Tidewater plant, beyond which the strikers are forbidden to pass. The deputies are armed with riot sticks, but a store of deadlier weapons was placed in Brehouse No. 4 for their use in case of emergency.

The federal board of mediators appointed by the Department of Labor is expected to arrive here today. It consists of John A. Moffett of New Jersey, a prominent labor man, and James A. Smythe of Pennsylvania. The board will try to bring about a conference between the strike leaders and the Standard Oil management.

In the meantime both sides are standing firm. Chester Edwards speaking for his father today, declared that the company would defend its property and make no concessions while the strikers continued their campaign of violence.

"We have 2,400 guards inside the plant," he said. "We got them because Chief of Police Wilson told us we would have to protect our own property. The guards inside the plant are not armed with rifles, but with shotguns."

Strike leaders declared the statement as to the weapons used by the guards untrue. Bullets have been extracted from the wounds inflicted on several strikers.

JACK ROSE REVEALS NEW FACTS ABOUT BECKER AND WHITMAN

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Jack Rose, in a new statement on the Becker case, adds a dramatic point about Governor Whitman's connection with the case.

The bald gambler says:

"Governor Whitman does not need me to defend him, but I'll tell something never told before. Every one has been saying that Whitman wanted Becker above all others. Well, the very man that Whitman did not want was Becker. I'll never forget the first day I was brought into the District Attorney's office, I said:

"'Mr. Whitman, Becker's clean in this thing.'

"Whitman said, 'I'm glad to hear that.'

SENTIMENT AND DUTY.

"Months later I found out why. During all those weeks Whitman was battling between sentiment and duty. The story dates back some twelve or fifteen years. At that time Whitman's father—the Rev. John S. Whitman—lived in New York. Becker was a patrolman, single, and took his meals in a boarding house adjoining the home of Mr. Whitman's father. The elder Whitman met Becker and became interested in the husky young cop. Becker was well versed in the Bible, and he and Mr. Whitman's father walked and talked together.

"The elder Whitman told his son about Becker and in later years when Charles S. Whitman became a magistrate and district attorney he remembered this fine young policeman.

The bald gambler goes into Becker's relations with the late Big Tim Sullivan and Sullivan's relations with Rosenthal in great detail, corroborating in part the statements of Harry Applebaum, "Big Tim's" secretary, and makes several revelations hitherto unpublished.

"I see by the papers that the Beckers have authorized a story to the effect that I collected a 'bush fund' of $6,000 from six gamblers which was to be used to get Rosenthal out of town and prevent him from squealing on Becker," said Rose.

"The gamblers mentioned are 'Fat Al' Levy, 'Denny' Zwelfox, 'Dollar' John Langerman, 'Pat Moe' Brown, Bridgie Webber and a man known as Slats who worked for 'Beansey' Rosenfield. Of course that story is false. I know at that time that 'Fat Moe' and Slats were looking for a $2 bill.

"I am sorry for Becker, sorrier than he would be for me. But take it from me the right man is going to the electric chair next Wednesday. Harry Appelbaum is trying to save Becker because he is sorry for him. So are others who know he is guilty."

Osborn and Manton refuse to discuss their plans. They refuse also to admit that they are planning to ask an eleventh hour stay of execution before a Justice of the Supreme Court in Westchester county. It was rumored at Sing Sing that this application would be made by Saturday to Justice Tompkins at Nyack.

MEETING WITH BIG TIM.

Rose spoke as follows:

"In the first place I gave my testimony at the trials of Becker and against the gunmen without any arrangement whatever with the district attorney that I had to bring about convictions. In the State's stipulations it was provided merely that I was to tell the truth. Before Webber, Valton and I went into the grand jury room District Attorney Whitman said to us:

"'I don't want you men to deviate one inch from the truth. If you do, I will take you into the Supreme Court and have a judge nullify the contract.'

"On the day of the Sam Paul outing I went to Luchow's and heard that Applebaum was looking all over for me. Soon he came along in his car and said:

"'Jack, I want to see you on a matter of great importance. I have a message from the big fellow. Can you arrange to have Becker meet Tim tonight? This means everything to everybody.'

"I got Becker on the phone and Becker said:

"'What the —— does Tim Sullivan want with me? I don't want to see any of that crowd.'

"I finally persuaded him to agree to a meeting. Applebaum and I went to Becker's house and brought him down to Columbia Circle. He and Tim conferred, while Applebaum and I sat in the car. District Attorney Whitman knew all about this meeting, about Becker's relations with Sullivan and about Sullivan's relations with Rosenthal. He was ready to cross-examine Becker had the latter taken the stand."

"On the way down in the car did you say anything to Applebaum about the necessity of breaking Rosenthal?" Rose was asked.

"Never," replied Rose. "I did say that I hoped that the Big Fellow would straighten this thing out, as there was great danger.

DIDN'T PLAY FAIR.

"When I first met Becker we entered into an agreement in which I was to get 25 per cent. The first month's haul was $2,000. Soon it rose to $10,000 a month. Then I no longer got 25 per cent. Becker began to collect himself to save the 25 per cent. He did not play fair with me even then.

"In his statement Becker covers all his movements on the morning of the murder with the exception of twenty minutes. During the twenty minutes unnoticed he shot to the West Forty-seventh street station and met Webber and me at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue.

"It was then that he said he'd like to rip Rosenthal's tongue out by the roots. Then I knew what manner of man I was dealing with.

"There was no hush fund raised by me to get Rosenthal out of the jurisdiction of the New York courts. If it had been true, as stated, that Tim had given me $6,000 to send Rosenthal away the murder would not have happened. Time and again I suggested to Becker that we bribe Rosenthal.

"He said, 'No, we won't give the squealing rat a penny. Let's croak him and then let every other —— of his type know that we've croaked him and why.'

FREE LANCE GRAFTER.

"Not two per cent. of Becker's raids were on the level. They were designed to keep up his efficiency percentage at headquarters. After each raid I'd go around and fix it up.

"Let me say here that there's no man higher up. He was a free lance grafter."

"Where will you be next Wednesday, the date of the execution, Jack?"

"I'll be suffering the tortures of the damned," replied Rose.

"Where?" Alone," he replied.

Becker Deposited $72,545; Money Followed His Raids

NEW YORK, July 23.—Investigation prior to Charles Becker's first trial disclosed that during the period he was in charge of the "Strong Arm Squad," bank deposits were made in his name to the amount of $72,545.

According to "Jack" Rose and other witnesses, Becker followed each raid by a demand upon his victim for graft, the cases of those who paid him tribute being later killed in court. A comparison of the dates of some of the raids with the dates of bank deposits made for Becker shows:

NANTASKET BOAT FOR CHILDREN'S OUTINGS

Bandinge Fund excursions, to take 15,000 poor children down the harbor to Bumpkin Island, begin next week.

The AMERICAN has been urging that something be done to hurry up those excursions, which have been delayed, pending repairs on the Deer Island boat Monitor.

The Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, through Frederic L. Lane, its general manager, sent word to Penal Institutions Commissioner Dalton Shaw, who has charge of the excursions, that it would furnish a steamer free for 10 daily excursions.

At a conference at the office of Public Works Commissioner Edward Murphy today, Mr. Lane's offer was gratefully accepted. The first excursion under this arrangement will be next Wednesday, and daily thereafter. It is expected that by the time the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company's offer has run its course, the Monitor will be ready for use.

Now Commissioner Shaw is free to use the Bandidge Fund money for children's luncheons on these outings, as has been done in former years, as the transportation expense will not come out of the fund.

Police Probe Fire in Chelsea Stable

The Chelsea police are investigating another fire which they believe was of incendiary origin. It partially destroyed a stable in the rear of the Griffin Car Wheel Company, at the foot of Gerrish avenue, a location difficult to reach with hose, and in a district which includes a large box factory. The loss is estimated at $1,000.

CURLEY STRUCK BY OPTIMISM OF THE WEST

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 23.—"The spirit of optimism which pervades the West, and which already I have found evident in St. Paul, is the chief message which I have to take back to Boston with me," said Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, who, with his wife and son, are staying until Saturday in St. Paul on their return trip from the San Francisco Fair and a tour of the coastal States.

"In Boston we are more conservative and slower to take the initiative along lines of public improvements, but are fairly well satisfied with our city as it is," he added.

Mayor Curley reached St. Paul at 4:30 p. m. and took opportunity before evening to view the new Catholic Cathedral, which he pronounced warmly as a work of art. He is staying at the St. Paul Hotel. Today, in company with City Engineer Claussen, he will make an inspection of the city's street paving system, its parks and lighting system.

"I have been much impressed with your stone and wood block paving here," he said, "and wish to examine it more thoroughly. We have 325 miles of macadam and brick paving in Boston, which must be replaced within five years by a more modern and more durable material. Another improvement our Boston streets need is widening, but, fortunately, it is out of the question to consider this. Last year we did widen two short downtown streets, together about 100 yards long, and the cost was nearly $2,500,000."

Mayor Curley expressed great satisfaction in having visited the fair and advised it for every American as a means of gaining a better idea of the nation's wonderful resources.

He said he believed Governor Walsh would again be a candidate for gubernatorial honors in the Bay State this Fall and would be elected. When asked if he had heard of criticisms by the Boston City Finance Committee on expense of mayors, automobiles and photographs charged to the Mayor's office, he stated he had not.

Norwood Police Matron a Theory, Not a Condition

Rev. Charles Hastings Brown of Norwood and his friends have won their fight to have the town vote for a police matron. The vote was passed at a special town meeting in Everett Hall.

But—

The vote added that such matron shall be appointed by the selectmen "when they shall deem it necessary."

Moreover—

The salary appropriation clause was deleted from the motion.

So—

There really won't be any matron until the selectmen shall deem her necessary and until money for her salary is appropriated.

It's a long, long way to the matron.

The voters see an example at this meeting in the Boston city government by appropriating $50,000 for paving streets.

Waltham Jitney Bus Men Lose in Newton Court

The Newton jitney row, looked upon as a test case of technicalities all over New England, was decided today against the jitney interests.

Under a decision rendered by Judges Kennedy, Bacon and Copeland, Alderman Daniel L. Tickton of Waltham, president of the Tham Auto Bus Company, was fined $15 for violating the city ordinances of Newton by operating jitney buses without a license. James Delaney, chauffeur, was fined $5, and Thomas F. Cullen, who collected fares, was fined $5. All appealed.

President Tickton's company applied for a license in Newton, but was refused. The company continued to operate its line and hoped to evade the Newton ordinances by declining to collect fares until after the buses had passed the city limits.

LICENSE BOARD WARNS OF NEW LAW

The Licensing Board has notified license holders that the "immorality" law passed by the last Legislature is to be enforced to the letter.

The captains of the various police stations have instructed their men regarding the new law, and all violations reported will not only be prosecuted in court but by the police before the Licensing Board.

One section of the new law reads as follows:

"Whoever for the purpose of immoral solicitation or immoral bargaining, shall resort to any cafe, restaurant, saloon or other place where food or drink is sold or served to be consumed upon the premises, and whoever shall resort to any such place for the purpose of, in any manner, inducing another person to engage in immoral conduct and whoever being in or about any such place shall engage in any such acts, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $500, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

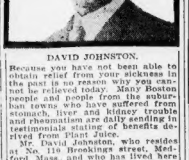
BUSINESS MAN'S RECOMMENDATION

David Johnston, of 110 Brookings Street, Endorses Plant Juice.

"The word 'can't' should be eliminated from everybody's vocabulary, for demonstrations are constantly coming to our notice of how the impossibilities of yesterday are the accepted facts of today," said the Plant Juice man, who has his headquarters at the Liggett drug store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he is introducing the herbal stomach remedy, Plant Juice.



DAVID JOHNSTON.

Because you have never been able to obtain relief from your sickness in the past is no reason why you cannot be relieved today. Many Boston people and people from the suburban towns who have suffered from stomach, liver and kidney trouble and rheumatism are daily sending in testimonials stating of benefits derived from Plant Juice.

Mr. David Johnston, who resides at No. 110 Brookings street, Medford, Mass., and who has lived here for 44 years, and is well known resident of the town and a prominent church member, stated:

"I had stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia for some time. My food would ferment in my stomach, causing gases to form, and I was always sick or bad bloated. My stomach felt at times as though there was a fire in the pit of it. I had dizzy spells, headaches, nervous and restless, and could not sleep at night. I had tried different remedies, but nothing seemed to relieve me of my troubles. I had read in the daily papers about Plant Juice, and the benefits which people were find the benefits which people were deriving from its use, and I decided to give it a trial. I have only taken one bottle of Plant Juice, and I can truthfully state that I have gotten more real benefit from it than anything I ever took. I can now eat any kind of food and it agrees with me. I do not have any more aches or pains, and I sleep fine at night. I can certainly indorse Plant Juice to anyone suffering from stomach trouble, as it is a fine tonic."

The Plant Juice man is at the Liggett drug store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Riker-Jaynes, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Enserol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

EDIZIONE ITALIANA
BOSTON AMERICAN

VOL. I. BOSTON, 23 LUGLIO, 1915. NO. 27.

Gorizia in un cerchio di fuoc o. Altra guerra italo-turca.

Sotto il Fuoco Gettan Ponti

Sull altipiano Carso due linee di trincee austriache furono conquistate dagli Italiani i quali vi fecero centinaia di prigionieri. Delle mitragliatrici furono pure catturate.

SOTTO IL FUOCO GETTAN PONTI.

Sotto il fuoco terribile degli austriaci il genio italiano getta altri ponti sull' Isonzo, e le truppe italiane passano alla riva orientale per sostenere le forze che intendono circondare Gorizia.

CORPO A CORPO, A PLAVA.

Vicino Plava la lotta si e' lotta si e' fatta sanguinosissima, corpo a corpo, nelle trincee.

LA CROCE ROSSA IN DIFFICOLTA'.

Ambo i contendenti lottano con le piu' grandi difficolta' per rimuovere i feriti da quelle regioni montagnose, e in alcuni punti e' anche impossibile il soppellire i morti.

L'IMPORTANZA DI TOLMINO.

Tolmino giace a twenty miglia da Gorizia, dove la vallata dell'Isonzo e' ampia circa due miglia. Su un lato di detta valle le montagne si elevano a 5,000 piedi e sono coronate da fortissime difese austriache. Il valore di Tolmino dipende dalla sua importanza strategica, perche' e' connessa a Trieste dalla linea ferroviaria.

SPAZZANDO IL NEMICO AD OGNI ATTACCO.

Gli Italiani, pressando da tutti i lati i nemici, guadagnano sempre terreno.

ROMA, 22 luglio — La guerra tra l'Italia e la Turchia e' imminente. Le relazioni diplohatiche fra le due nazioni sono divenute insostenibili e la stampa italiana unanime fa pressioni sul Governo italiano per prendere le piu' adeguate misure onde salvaguardare il prestigio e gli interessi nazionali all'estero.

TURCO-TELESCHI IN CIRENAICA.

Dall'Asia Minore giungono le piu' preoccupanti notizie per le persecuzioni di cui sono vittima i Cristiani, ed il fatto che trenta generali tereschi e turchi siano sbarcati in Cirenaica con armi e munizioni, ha prodotto enorme impressione. Le munizioni di guerra pare siano destinate ai ribelli di Tripoli, i quali sono sempre in armi fin dall'occupazione italiana.

PERDONO TERRENO E RIATTACANO.

Quantunque gli Italiani abbiano fatto degli importanti progressi nella grande battaglia sul fronte dell 'Isonzo per la possessione di Gorizia e Tolmino, pare gli Austriaci hanno contesso sempre il terreno, cercando di riguadagnare il perduto con violentissimi contro-attacchi.

Quantunque gli Italiani abbiano fatto degli importanti progressi nella grande battaglia sul fronte dell 'Isonzo per la possessione di Gorizia e Tolmino, pare gli Austriaci hanno contesso sempre il terreno, cercando di riguadagnare il perduto con violentissimi contro-attacchi.

Essi circondano Gorizia, la fortezza per cui ogni si combatte la piu' sanguinosa delle battaglie, da tutti i lati, spazzando tutti gli Austriaci e distruggendoli ovunque si ingaggia combattimento.

UN MILIONE DI COMBATTENTI.

Si calcola che le truppe italiane destinate in questa lotta siano circa 600,000, mentre quelle nemiche, protette dalle loro opere fortificate, sono 400,000.

Nel 50 Giorno Della Battaglia

Questo e' il quinto giorno della battaglia e, siccome da anibo le parti si sono ricevuti dei rinforzi, la lotta e' oggi piu' terribile che nei giorni scorsi. Il bombardamento furioso e si effettua su tutto il fronte, gli Italiani attaccando i forti austriaci con i nuovi loro potenti cannoni.

OTTO FORTI BERSAGLIATI.

Gli otto forti che coronano le colline di monte Sabotina e monte Podgore sono il bersaglio dei grossi cannoni italiani. Di gia' alcune trincee del monte Podgore sono state conquistate alla baionetta dalle truppe italiane.

MARCONI A LONDRA.

Guglielmo Marconi si trova a Londra per far acquisto di materiale da guerra per conto dell' Italia.

What Causes Tuberculosis?

In the opinion of many medical authorities, tuberculosis is aided, if not actually caused, by a loss of lime from the system. "Where there is a decalcification, the lime salts must be supplied medicinally," says Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, in the May, 1913, issue of "Medical Progress."

To supply these salts often is difficult, since in some foods they are not easily assimilable.

Eckman's Alterative, however, options lime in an organic form, which is so combined with other elements as to be assimilated by the average person and to film in part, or due its curative.

We make no boastful claims, but many cases of tuberculosis apparently have yielded to, and obtained no relief whatever from, Eckman's Alterative, so we add to the list of Bitter Drug Stores and leading druggists.

Italy Takes Steps for War Against Turks

By BRETON D'ALLAIRE,
Special Correspondence of the International News Service.

ROME, July 22.—The question of peace or war between Italy and Turkey now rests in the hands of Baron Sonnino, the Italian foreign minister. Following a cabinet council that lasted nearly four hours, the ministry gave the Foreign Minister full powers to take any steps necessary to secure satisfaction from Turkey for the illegal use of the Italian flag.

Italy and Turkey are nearer a diplomatic break than at any time since the war began as a result of the seizure of an Italian steamer, the misuse of the Italian flag and the failure of the Ottoman government to answer the protests of the Italian ambassador at Constantinople.

The latest incident affecting the Turco-Italian relations was fully discussed by the cabinet. According to a report from the Italian ambassador at Constantinople, the Turks after seizing the Italian steamer Mondello used it as a transport in the Sea of Marmora, keeping the Italian flag flying.

Everybody Likes Roessle Beer—and Goes Where They Can Buy It

WHEN you want quality and fine flavor in a beer ask for "Roessle." You will find that stores are displaying this sign because they want the public to know that they carry such an exceptional product. And you will be sure to get it if you say "Be sure to send me Roessle."

Perfect Boiling Is Necessary to a High Quality Beer

Roessle Beer is not run into a boiling tank and forgotten. Our Master Brewer watches the boiling process from start to finish. He carefully notes its progress and continually makes tests as to results. In this way he lays the right foundation for perfection in Roessle Beer. Everything is done to make it a perfect product.

Sons Absent When Mother, 75, Weds

Mrs. Alzada M. Everbeck, seventy-five, was married to Frank W. Dunklee, a Boston real estate man, by the Rev. William J. Day of the First Baptist Church of Winthrop, at her home, No. 61 Cliff avenue, Winthrop.

Mrs. Dunklee's two sons, George Everbeck of Dorchester and Arthur Everbeck, were not present at the wedding. The sons tried to persuade their mother not to marry, and had neighbors and friends join them in their efforts, it is said.

Robbers Ransack Home in Malden

Howard M. Flanders a member of the firm of Kidder Peabody & Co., returned from Seavlew, to his home at No. 197 Glenwood street, Malden, to find his house ransacked from cellar to garret.

The robbers secured $20 in small change, from three banks belonging to Flanders' children.

Thieves Get $1,000 Loot in Brookline

Thieves secured over $1,000 worth of jewelry, silverware and clothing from the apartments of Mrs. Theodore Hovey at No. 12 University road, Brookline, Wednesday afternoon during the absence of the family. As several rooms in the apartment had not been upset, it is believed the burglars were frightened away before they completed their task. It is thought they hoped to find valuables and automobiles belonging to Mrs. Rowell, an aunt of Mrs. Hovey, who recently died at the age of 102.

Complete Clearance
Mark-Down SALE

This Sale is held solely and simply for the legitimate purpose of disposing of every dollar's worth of our summer stock, for in this, as in every Kennedy Store, it's a hard and fast rule to carry nothing over but to dispose of everything during the season for which it was made.

Only our own high-grade, known-quality stock is involved—all of it new this season and sold under our usual money-back guarantee. Taken by themselves, our price reductions are not especially startling. But when you consider the character of the merchandise they apply to, they become little short of extraordinary.

Come any day that best suits your convenience, and excepting only Blacks, Palm Beaches and Skelcton Outings, you may take your pick from our entire stock at the exact price reductions shown below. No other store gives you such a free rein at Sale time—no other store offers you so big an actual saving of real money.

The same careful attention is paid, and the same guarantee of satisfaction given during this Sale as if you were paying full price.

175,000 CHINESE DROWNED IN FLOODS

By LEONARD C. AMES.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PEKIN, July 23.—Latest reports from the flood district in Southeastern China indicate that more than 175,000 persons have perished.

Heavy rains are falling again and the rivers in Kwangsi and Kwangtung provinces are over their banks once more. More than sixty native villages have been swept away. The only way of getting food to the stricken district is by boat and this method is so slow that thousands are starving to death.

Sailor Treated at Sea by Radio Fails to Recover

PHILADELPHIA, July 22.—Captain Lane of the steamship Bradford arriving here from Tuxpan, Mexico, told a story that on the second day out a sailor was taken ill.

No physician being on board the wireless operator swept the sea with his wireless in search of one. A British warship answered, but refused to give her location, and said she could not leave her post.

The man's symptoms were wirelessed to the warship's doctor, who diagnosed the case as pneumonia. The physician then wirelessed a prescription to Captain Lane. The treatment was applied, but two days later the patient died. The body was brought here.

Electric Clock for Tower of Custom House

An electric clock has been decided upon as the best timepiece for the Custom House tower.

A master clock in the office of the assistant custodian will work the four faces of the big timepiece. A motor behind each of the four dials, connected electrically with the master clock, will move the hands. According to present plans the clock should be in operation Labor Day.

The government decided in favor of the electric clock on the ground of economy.

It has been decided to have a row of lights the entire length of the hands, with a red light at the tip of the hour hand and a green one on the minute.

5 DAYS' FURIOUS BATTLE ON ISONZO

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, July 23.—Although they have made important gains in the great battle on the Isonzo front for the possession of Gorizia and Tolmino, the Italians have been subjected to the most violent counter attacks by the Austrians.

This is the fifth day of the battle and as both sides have been reinforced, the fighting is more severe than ever.

A furious bombardment is going on all along the front with the Italian guns pounding away at the mountain forts of the Austrians and the long range guns of the Austrians replying.

BATTER TEN FORTS.

The ten forts crowning the heights of Mount Sabotina and Mount Podgora are being battered by the Italian howitzers. Already some of the trenches on the slopes of Podgora have been carried by the forces of King Victor Emmanuel.

Two lines of Austrian trenches on Carso plateau have been carried by the Italians, who made hundreds of prisoners. A number of machine guns were also captured.

Under terrific artillery fire Italian engineers are building more bridges across the Isonzo and Italian troops are being moved to the eastern bank to support the forces that are trying to encircle Gorizia. Near Plava there is bloody hand to hand fighting in the trenches.

HARD TO MOVE WOUNDED.

Both sides are experiencing the utmost difficulty in removing their wounded owing to the mountainous condition of the ground, and at some points it is impossible to bury the dead owing to the rocky soil.

Tolmino lies about twenty miles north of Gorizia at a point where the Isonzo Valley is about two miles wide. Up on the sides of this valley the mountains rise 5,000 feet in the air and are crowned with strong Austrian forts.

The value of Tolmino lies in its strategic relation to railway lines running into Trieste and in the fact that it is the present Austrian base of operations.

FRENCH REPEL GERMANS IN VOSGES

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, July 23.—In the western theatre of war the greatest activity is displayed on the allies' right wing, especially in the Vosges, where the French are using heavy forces against the German positions.

The repulse of German attacks south of La Faye, in the Vosges, is announced in an official communique issued by the French War Office today.

In the region of Arracourt, east of Nancy, a strong reconnoissance party of Germans, supported by artillery, was driven back by the French fire.

Strong German attacks were directed against the recently captured positions of the French upon the crest of Lingekopf, in the Vosges, and part of the French line was penetrated.

East of Metzeral, in Alsace, the Germans assumed the offensive, but were hurled back by French counter attacks.

Near Bagatelle, in the Argonne, a French company captured a portion of a German trench, thereby strengthening out the front.

During the night Pont-a-Mousson was shelled.

ECZEMA ON BACK ITCHING TERRIBLY
Also On Limbs. Grew Worse and Spread Over Chest and Arms. Impossible to Sleep.
HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had eczema on my back, also on my limbs. It began by a red eruption which grew worse and finally spread over my chest and arms. The itching was something terrible, and I would scratch until it would bleed and dark scales would form. It was impossible to sleep at night. I was ashamed to go out in public. I had the eczema a whole year.
"I happened to read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment, so I bought a cake of Soap and a box of Ointment. They brought instant relief. I continued to use them and in six months I was completely healed." (Signed) H. B. Dexter, Lock Box 264, Mattapoisett, Mass., Jan. 7, 1915.

Burbank Drops Out of G. O. P. Race

Ex-Senator Burbank has decided not to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor because of the opposition among certain Progressives. He says this is of no practical importance as far as the strength of the vote is concerned, but would perhaps confuse the issue and befog the conclusions to be drawn from the vote under such circumstances.

Lost Worcester Boy Is Found in Boston

The Dorchester police found Francis Rivard, nine, who says he lives at No. 75 Myrtle street, Worcester. The boy was brought to Revere Beach by a friend in an automobile. When they became separated in the crowd the boy decided that he couldn't get back to Worcester. He reached Boston all right, but mistook a Dorchester car for one Worcester-bound and landed in Fields Corner.

Blames Bacteria for Pie Eating Deaths

PROVIDENCE, July 23.—A chemical analysis of materials used in the making of pie, the eating of which is believed to have caused the deaths of four persons in Westerly, discloses no evidence of any poisonous substances, according to a report submitted to Attorney-General Rice by Professor Strickland, chemist for the State Board of Food and Drug Commissioners. He says bacteria in some food probably caused the deaths.

Submarine Chased Sachem, in Port Here

A German submarine chased the Warren line steamer Sachem from the mouth of the Mersey to within thirty miles of Liverpool on her last trip from Boston, according to statements made by officers of the ship when she returned to Boston. The Sachem steered a zig-zag course and a call by wireless brought two British torpedo boat destroyers to the vessel's aid.

ACCUSE QUIGLEY IN EVERS ROW

be an umpire," he declared. "He hasn't hurt me, though he gave me the big surprise of my professional career. What will Mr. Tener do about it? I don't know. Time will tell.

"The worst I called Quigley was a yellow cur. He claims I understand, that I stepped on his feet and tried to spike him. This I didn't do. If I take an oath on that, and I feel confident I will be substantiated by every player on both clubs."

Evers came to bat with two on and one out, the Cubs leading, three to nothing. With three and one on Evers, a ball came up low and on the outside. It looked bad, but Quigley called it a strike.

Evers registered a solid protest. The next ball was very low and wide and Quigley gave Evers his base.

Evers started for first, but after a step or two stopped, swept up a handful of dust, and flung it in Quigley's direction.

Quigley jerked his thumb toward the bench, sending Evers out of the game. Evers started to talk and walked briskly up to Quigley, till their faces were a matter of inches apart. No one in the stands could hear what Evers was saying.

Then Quigley swung a swift right-hand jolt home on Evers' chest. Evers fell backward. Quigley signed to the crowd that Evers had stepped on his foot. Evers recovered from his surprise and started to raise a real row, but when players from both sides subdued him. Fitzpatrick took Evers' place in the game. And two others stood guard by the Braves' bench through the rest of the game and escorted the umpires off the field.

The Braves have had trouble with Quigley before. In Chicago in June he chased the extra hands off the bench on four successive afternoons. There have been other incidents.

Yesterday's affair was the climax.

Tuohey Goes West to Get Gotch to Wrestle

Frank Gotch, world's champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler, will be seen in action in Boston if plans of George Tuohey, the wrestling promoter, do not go amiss, and in order to settle the matter definitely, Tuohey will make a trip West to visit Gotch and incidentally to look over other promising wrestling talent. He says:

"If Frank is serious in his statement that he will wrestle reputable Americans, I can bid as high as anybody in order to secure the champion's services. In addition to Gotch, I expect to secure for an early appearance here Joe Steckler, the Nebraskan, who made such a good showing in the West.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the twenty-third of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the BOSTON AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

THE HURRAH EXERCISE.

We have now arrived at the Hurrah Exercise.

It is quite noiseless, in spite of its name; the only sound you will hear is caused by the crackling of your ball-and-socket joints, and even that will diminish as time goes by and you get broken into the thing.

The sound, however, will be emphasized by the sensations accompanying it, which are such as to lead you to suspect that the joints are going to break. They will stop a little short of that; but the day after your first experience, you will be aware of a rustiness in the region of the front of the shoulder which will impart a jerkiness to movements of your arms.

All the better; it proves that you are getting on. Many men and most women pass through their lives without once feeling that rustiness, and therefore without enjoying the privilege of overcoming it. It means that the Old Adam is getting out of your system, and the New One coming in, full of grace and suppleness.

But to work! The German soldier attitude once more. Expand your chest until you feel the ligaments that bind your ribs together are ready to snap; inhale all the air in the neighborhood, and keep it inhaled while the exercise is proceeding. Draw in your abdomen, and get the firmest kind of tension on your thighs and buttocks.

These preliminaries are important.

The exercise itself is the simplest thing imaginable.

Without raising the arms, bring the hands together in front, fists clenched, elbows straight. Now throw both arms upward and outward, impelling them also backward, with all your strength, as they pass your head. Thus they will describe simultaneously two circles, the radius of which is the arm, and the hub, or centre, the ball-and-socket joint. Don't stop after making a single revolution; keep them going like a brace of windmills in a race. Twenty times. Remember about the inflated chest, and indrawn abdomen, and the tensed legs. Your special effort must be to force the arms as far back as possible, as if you wanted to make the knuckles of your two fists meet behind.

The next time U. circus comes to town, keep your eyes on the small boys who line the street as the animals go by. As the wonder and excitement of the procession rises to the elephant-point, you will see them perform this exercise, accompanied by yells. That is the origin of its name. But in the seclusion of your chamber, you must imagine the elephant, and omit the yells.

BRAVES IN SECOND CLASH WITH CUBS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

A Dutchman got a job as conductor on the street cars—you doubtless remember the story—and was put on a route with which he was not familiar. He began calling out the cross-street stops, but hadn't got far when he forgot what came next. After a moment's profound deliberation with himself he opened the door of the car and yelled.

"Vell, here comes anudder vun."

So it in with these ball games. They come along so fast they are hard to remember. There's "anudder vun" today up at Fenway Park, but we almost forgot about it, thinking of yesterday's exciting battle.

The crowd at yesterday's fracas was much larger than the crowds that attended the games of the Cincinnati series—almost double, in fact. The strenuous scenes on the diamond that featured yesterday's battle have been the talk of the town ever since they happened. No doubt there will be a general uprising today, and the scramble for subway cars will be on in full force along about game time.

They say that pitchers are 50 per cent. of a ball club. It is therefore important to know who will pitch from day to day. That is, however, something that only the team managers know, and sometimes they don't know until the last minute. Our guess is that George Tyler will pitch for the Braves and that Humphries will pitch for the Cubs.

Mr. J. J. Evers may not be in the lineup; then, again, he may. It is up to President Tener of the National League.

Geers Drives Winner in Big $3,000 Race

CLEVELAND, O., July 23.—The Grand Circuit races here were interfered with by rain, but in spite of the late start four of the five races were raced off. The feature was the $3,000 Tavern "Stake" for 2.14 trotters. It was won by The Guide, driven by Geers.

Vanitie, Overhauled, Off to Race Resolute

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The cup yacht Vanitie, which has been overhauled at City Island, has started for Newport in tow of her tender, the Seminole. She will race against the Resolute next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

RED SOX MOVING FASTER THAN .667 CLIP

ST. LOUIS, July 23.—The armies of Carrigan and Rickey will engage in the third combat of their current series at Sportsman's Park this afternoon.

Opening with a pair of conquests, the Red Sox have raised their record on this all-important Western trip to eleven and five. That's honk-honking at swifter than a .667 clip. So, no wonder the Red Sox are first and the Athletics and talent in Chicago and Detroit down in the dumps.

Carrigan stated to the AMERICAN'S correspondent this morning he was not sure what pitcher he would use in this afternoon's contest.

"I guess it doesn't make a whole lot of difference; all nine of my hurlers are in trim for work," declared the Boston chieftain.

As Leonard and Collins worked overtime in Chicago, where the Red Sox gave the White Sox the surprise of their lives, and Wood had done rescue work two afternoons running here, Carrigan may come right back with Foster, always a bugaboo for the Browns, but who got off on the wrong foot yesterday and only survived two innings, or may take a chance and send Gregg or Pennock, both of whom are leading the simple life, against the sixth-placers.

Branch Rickey is doing his best to prevent the Red Sox from making a clean sweep. He really worked James and Laudermilk out of turn, sending them against the league leaders, so Carl Weilman, the flower of his staff, or Earl Hamilton is expected to get busy today.

Actually, it doesn't look fair to send those Red Sox against the Browns. The Red Sox are slugging timely and getting good pitching. Though five more games are to be played, the Browns will be lucky to snatch one of them. That is, that's the way it looks after the first two performances.

The White Sox gained half a game yesterday, but Manager Carrigan brings the information that the claw of Rowland will not disturb his entry again this season.

New York Double-Headers.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Washington New York National League game was postponed because of rain. Two games will be played today and on Saturday and Monday in an attempt to make up the interrupted schedule.

YOUNG SAYLOR HAS BIG GO ON HANDS

BOUTS TONIGHT.

Milburn "Young" Saylor vs. Mickey Sheridan at Minneapolis.

Mickey Kinsana vs. Ted Wolgast at Buffalo.

Durin Brandt vs. Louisiana kid at Brooklyn.

Battling Levinsky vs. Jack Keating at Philadelphia.

By JACK CONWAY.

MILBURN "YOUNG" SAYLOR is today one of the world's busiest young glove wielders. Like to this great little fighter is one bout after another. He fought a draw with Charley White at the Atlas A. A. a week ago Tuesday, while he knocked out Billy Wagner, a brother of White, in six rounds at Cincinnati last Wednesday evening. Saylor will be on the job again this evening when he will clash with Mickey Sheridan in a ten-round tussle, which will be held at Minneapolis.

Saylor's contest with Sheridan is a no-decision affair. Ray Bronson's sturdy little fighter, however, says that the whirl will not go the limit. He declares he is anxious to build up a fine knockout record and that he is planning to send Sheridan to the shelf for the count.

After Saylor gets through with Sheridan he will board a rattler and come to Boston. Here he will then meet Joe Azevedo in a twelve-round "go" at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. Ray Bronson writes us that Saylor's bouts with Wagner and Sheridan should have him in grand condition for his combat with Azevedo.

ON paper it looks as though the Saylor-Azevedo mixup would furnish as many thrills as the recent Saylor-White battle. If Saylor were pitted against a clever boxer he would not be able to show at his best, but as Azevedo is a rushing, tearing, two-handed fighter the Indianapolis light-weight should be in his element, as he takes great delight in exchanging blows with an opponent at close quarters.

AZEVEDO is a boxer who possesses enough ability to carry Saylor along at a terrific pace. He proved his class when he won a decision over Ad Wolgast on September 13, 1913. Wolgast was boxing well at that time, but Azevedo's aggressive style of mulling was too much for him. Azevedo also gave a good account of himself against Charley White, Joe Mandot and Johnny Dundee. A clever boxer would outpoint Azevedo in a ten- or twelve-round bout. The same is true about Saylor, but when two "bearcats" like Saylor and Azevedo get together in the same ring one of them is very apt to hit the canvas inside of the limit.

THE recent draw bout between Manny Ruben and Johnny Gallant has left the New England lightweight class in a muddle. Matty no longer has a clear claim to the championship. If these two men meet again in the future Ruben will probably be a pronounced favorite in the betting. He fought well in his judgment the other night than he has at any time during his ring career, and had the shade if one wished to split hairs. He forced the fighting in every round and his gave him the advantage. The decision, however, was not a poor one, for Ruben displayed some fine ring generalship, beat Gallant to the punch on numerous occasions and "tied" up the Chelsea boy in the clinches. But if a verdict had been given either way, Gallant would have been entitled to it.

MIKE GLOVER, the South Boston welterweight, is in grand condition and is anxious to get another bout with Jack Britton. If Glover meets Britton again, the weight for the bout will probably be 142 pounds, which will give the Peninsular boxer an advantage. The last Britton-Glover contest was one of the most scientific ring tussles ever held in Boston. We could stand another encounter like it.

Umpire Schools, with Diploma, Being Formed

CINCINNATI, O., July 2.—Cincinnati may see the day when commencement exercises are held for baseball umpires. And that day does not, seem far distant, according to plans which are now fast reaching fruition. It is the intention to furnish organized amateur baseball with arbiters of play, who have, by study and experience, gained the necessary knowledge to enable them to preside over a game, without friction. The scientific ball public schools will have the "College of Umpires." The teachers will be Billy Hart, now a National League umpire, and Billy Carpenter, who formerly held an indicator in the National.

The plan is the product of Recreation Director Fred Rensham. It is being favorably considered by Superintendent Condon. It is the idea to give instructions to would-be umpires, one night each week, during the Winter months. When a candidate has successfully passed the the tests that will be set by Messrs. Hart and Carpenter he will be given a diploma.

Harold Janvrin on Way Home for Rest

Willard Was Glad to Dodge Juarez

Bull fights don't appeal to Jess Willard. That is why he was not sorry when the plan to hold his fight with Johnson in the bull ring at Juarez fell through.

But, explains the champion in the chapter of his autobiography which appears in the AMERICAN tomorrow, even if the purse had been greater than Havana furnished, he thinks the powers that were in command in Mexico would have got most of the proceeds.

It was not easy sailing, either, while the preliminaries were being arranged. In fact, Jess had to mortgage his home to get money to live.

SIDELIGHTS on SPORTS By A·H·C·Mitchell

THIS column predicted a short time ago that there was bound to be trouble with umpires before long, owing to the closeness of the baseball races. The trouble has started. There will be more of it.

There is no desire to take credit for this prediction. It was no great stunt. It didn't take a prophet or a wizard to call the turn. It was as plain as the nose on a face.

UMPIRE QUIGLEY is considered by ball players, managers, club owners and writers to be the most incompetent official in the National League. As a rule, baseball writers do not criticize umpires. It is realized that umpires must make mistakes the same as all other human beings.

IT is a comparatively simple matter to separate the good umpires from the poor umpires. Spectators do not have to take the players' word or by governed by players' actions. They can see a man like Quigley work and tell pretty nearly his qualifications. Some of them stay right behind the plate and see a ball a foot wide of the plate called a strike—not once, but a dozen times in a game. Others may sit behind first or third base and see balls above a batter's head called a strike. Others may see a player tag a base runner before he reaches it, base coach hear him called "safe." And so on.

GOOD umpires call a small portion of pitched balls wrong, but poor umpires call a great number wrong. Good umpires may make mistakes now and then on base decisions, but poor umpires call most of the base decisions wrong.

OF course, players kick on general principles. It has always been part of the game. They kick whether they are right or wrong, but it is noticed that when a good umpire is working, the kicks are very few and very mild. When a poor umpire is working, however, the protests are almost continual.

JOHNNIE EVERS would rather beat the Cubs than any other team in the National League. Johnnie is one of the gamest fighters that ever stepped on a diamond. When he is encouraging his fellow players no man playing b—ball has the personality that he has to get the best work out of his teammates.

BUT Johnnie says things on the ball field that he shouldn't say. His excuse is that in the heat of battle he doesn't know what he does say.

QUIGLEY was umpiring behind the plate yesterday and there were kicks and protests almost from the start. Pieres and Bresnahan, the Chicago battery, were protesting on nearly every ball that was pitched by the Chicago side. Gowdy, for Boston, was also voicing his protests every little while.

IN the last of the third inning Evers got a base on balls. Instead of trotting down to first base he loitered and scooped a handful of dirt in the direction of Quigley. The umpire promptly put him out of the game. Evers advanced toward the umpire with some remark and Quigley drew back and struck the player on the neck.

BRESNAHAN held Evers back, preventing a further mixup, and Quigley pointed to his shoe, as much as to indicate that Evers had spiked him, an old trick of protesting ball players. Evers declared after the game that his foot never touched Quigley.

QUIGLEY will make a written report of the incident to President Tener of the National League. It is the custom of league presidents to inflict punishment based solely on an umpire's report.

What will Mr. Tener say? Will he punish the umpire for striking a player or will Evers be the only one to suffer?

QUIGLEY is a notoriously incompetent umpire. He has more trouble with players than any other official on Mr. Tener's staff. The National League race is very close. Any team in the league may win the National championship. There is much at stake for the rival clubs.

Cannot Mr. Tener do something about it?

IT is the general opinion among impartial observers in cities where there are American and National League clubs and where, therefore, there are chances to note the work of the umpires in both leagues, that the umpiring in the American League is 50 per cent better than it is in the National League.

Yet there is trouble in the American League over umpires. President Congleky of the Chicago White Sox declares that the umpiring in his league is the worst he ever saw. He laments the fact that competent men like Hank O'Day are idle and out of a job while inefficients are allowed to work. He declared that he will make a fight at the next league meeting for better umpiring. He has already made a protest to President Ban Johnson.

ROG. BRESNAHAN is said to favor the abolition of coaches at third base.

We second the motion; at least until such a time as the coachers can get some new stuff.

"At-a-boy," "Now you got 'em," "You got the big one left," "What'd'yer care for two," "Little o' th' all get," "You can do it, kid," "Touch all the bases," and so on are getting a little tiresome.

Yale Has Hard Time Locating Football Camp

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 2.—Plans for the actual practice of the Yale football eleven—practice, that is, prior to the opening of college—have been perfected by Frank Hinkey, the head coach and by the manager of the eleven. Carrington appears to be in a bad way as to selection of a place for early season quarters.

Usually the team has gone to Madison, but this Fall some other site will be secured. Manager Carrington and his staff, as reported, have been spending considerable time going over suggested resorts. The trouble has been that no one place contains every desired factor. There must be first of all a suitable playing field and after that satisfactory quarters for the men and carefully prepared food.

Laurel Beach was the place which came nearest to meeting the demands of the football authorities. There were suitable hotel accomodations and a fine playing field. Plans to go there, however, were given up when it was found that the owner of the athletic field declined to have the turf torn up by the cleats of the football players. Nor was he open to argument.

Laurel Beach thus eliminated, Branford Point has suggested itself. Here it was that the Columbia eleven used to come before they played Yale.

'Home Run' Baker to Play for $50 a Day

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 23.—J. Franklin (Home Run) Baker, formerly with the Philadelphia Athletics, has signed a contract with Morganton, in the Western North Carolina League, for the balance of the season, according to a message from Morganton today. Baker's salary will be $50 a day.

The league is a semi-professional organization, and the paid admission to a game averages little more than Baker's salary per day. The Morganton team is backed by a millionaire manufacturer, who is a red-hot fan and who cares nothing for expenses if his team wins. The league plays a split season and Morganton is going for the second half pennant.

Leo Callahan Breaks Leg.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 25.—Leo Callahan, centre fielder of the Harrisburg team, broke his leg above the ankle while sliding home in the second inning of the game between Harrisburg and Providence. Two years ago, in a game with Rochester, Callahan broke his leg in the same place. His home is in Boston.

OUIMET FACES HARD MATCH TODAY

Great interest in this State is attached to the play of the surviving eight players competing at the Woodland Golf Club in the third round of the Massachusetts amateur golf championship.

Francis Ouimet, the present State title holder and national amateur champion, still has his hat in the ring, in defending his two-year-old laurels, and this morning is opposing one of the hardest customers the State provides in the way of golf players. Ouimet and P. W. Whittemore are bracketed together, and the champion has his work cut out for him if the former Harvard athlete sets a pace the way he can go on any course.

Ouimet has been a bit off on his long game, which is usually perfect, while Whittemore has shown some consistent work in all departments since this season opened. Ouimet is the favorite but he has got to play a good reliable round to hope to win from his Country Club opponent this morning.

R. S. Evans, who won a "Marathon" match yesterday, and S. K. Sterne are another couple worth seeing on the links. Evans is a reputed long driver and Sterne is actually one. Evans has beaten Sterne in a State championship before and both have low handicap ratings and have been on the State team as well. These facts point to a very close match.

R. Hornblower, a newcomer into Massachusetts championships, showed his merits yesterday, when he played the first eight holes in 31. This is fast enough golf to make a Ouimet or a Hagen tremble. He is opposed in a Brae-Burn clubmate in the person of W. C. Chick, another ex-Harvard golf team member of known ability. Chick made Ouimet go to the home green in the State tourney at Brae-Burn last year for a victory, and while Chick is the favorite, there are speculations running as to if he just what will be the answer when the contest is over today.

R. R. Gorton was beaten by Ouimet in the final of the 1914 State tourney last year and this player and Parker Schofield are drawn together.

R. S. Evans, Belmont, vs. S. K. Sterne, Tatnuck.

R. Hornblower, Brae-Burn, vs. W. C. Chick, Brae-Burn.

Parker Schofield, Albemarle, vs. R. R. Gorton, Belmont.

P. W. Whittemore, Country, vs. Francis Ouimet, Woodland.

Lynn Man Working Hard for World's Series Trip

A. F. DE VOE.

The best baseball town in the world is about to come into its own.

All signs seem to point to our own Red Sox as the 1915 American League leaders. Accidents sometimes happen, but it will have to be an extraordinary setback to keep the Speed Boys from getting this year's pennant.

Of course, we hope the Red Sox win for the sake of the twenty-five New England fans who are to be the AMERICAN'S guests at the World's Series games, but no matter who wins or where the game is located, twenty-five fans will see the 1915 World's Championship games, and all at the expense of the AMERICAN.

Everyone in New England is invited to take an interest in the AMERICAN'S Baseball Contest for the twenty-five free trips. If you cannot compete yourself, help some fellow-fan to secure a place among the leading twenty-five.

Next Sunday will be an important milestone in the race, as a new vote list will be printed. It is not necessary to be first in order to win one of the trips as twenty-five New England fans will be adjudged winners and the twenty-fifth place is just as good as the first.

So, vote early—vote often—but, whatever else you do or do not do—VOTE!

It's a case of "Hello Bill" in Lynn where A. F. De Voe is campaigning for one of the twenty-five free trips. He is a prominent Elk and Odd Fellow and extremely popular.

Panama Marathon to be Held Aug. 28

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—The Olympic Marathon race, full course, will be held here Saturday, August 28, according to an announcement by the athletic commissars of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The date originally set for the Marathon was September 25. The change was made at the request of eastern clubs, it is said.

LINART IS BENT ON BEATING WILEY

Sorely peeved by his first defeat at the Revere Cycle Track Wednesday night, Victor Linart, the Belgian bike-er, today accused the American riders of teaming in order to "get" him and further stated that he could lick any of them in a match race.

Linart is prepared to give George Wiley the fight of his life in the 40-mile motor-paced race at the beach oval tomorrow night. Georges Seres, the Frenchman, and Percy Lawrence from San Francisco will also be competitors in this event.

Wiley says that Linart's statements are unjustified. He declares there was no teaming among the American riders and that every one was out for himself. He then went on to say:

"If Linart has anything let him show it tomorrow night. I am prepared for him. The contest is practically over the same distance and I am confident that I will be able to dispose of him just as easily as I did Wednesday night."

Wiley is the first rider to conquer Linart on the Revere track, but he was forced to establish a new record in order to do so. Therefore, the race tomorrow evening should furnish more thrills than ever as Linart, according to his own quotations, is bent on getting Wiley.

Willie Turville has added new life to the professional class. This youngster is making all the money-makers hustle and naturally has created new interest in the open event.

Tri-County League to Have Four Teams

SPRINGFIELD, July 23.—Hank Ramsey, ex-manager of the Springfield Colonial League club, announced that the tri-county league had been organized. Holyoke, Greenfield, Northampton and Chicopee are the clubs. The season will start July 28 and close September 11, each team playing twenty games at home. Tom Dowd has backed out of the Holyoke proposition and the team there will be run by Nat Strong who will take along the Havana Reds. Ramsey will manage Greenfield, Joe Nelson, Pittsfield, and Tom Owens, Northampton. The salary limit will be $250 a week.

"THE GODDESS"

By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

"GREAT Scott!" he cried, "my little Amesbury girl. Of course she is. A hundred times I've been on the verge of that knowledge—and yet because it was impossible that she should be—the definite knowledge never really came to me. For Heaven's sake!

"Now do you believe me?" asked Mary, coldly.

"I must, Mary. But how did you find this out?"

"It doesn't matter. I worried it out of somebody. Now what will you do?"

"I'll go down to Celestia and tell her about herself, and shake her faith in herself."

"You'll need proofs."

"You think so? I'm not sure. Are there any?"

"I can't produce any. But——"

"But what?"

"Well, it might be a good thing if you could locate the cave. That's the only thing I can think of offhand."

Tommy fell into a brown study. Then he said:

"Mary, what is your motive in telling me all this?"

"Perhaps I don't want Mr. Barclay elected. Perhaps I dislike Celestia so much that I want her to be humbled even at my own expense. The motive doesn't matter."

Mary's real motive in making the foregoing revelation to Tommy was not entirely clear even to herself. Above all things she wanted to be rid of Celestia. The promise of a fortune in pearls to the person who brought the definite word of Celestia's definite elimination from mundane affairs had not borne fruit.

Now Mary thought that a collapse of Celestia, never ever given, through a shaking of her faith in herself, might produce definite results. Celestia, on learning that she was not a divine being but a faker, would become not only valueless to the arch conspirators, but a stern and awful ménace to their plans. They would succeed swiftly and without mercy where Mrs. Gunsdorf had failed.

It wasn't for want of trying that Mrs. Gunsdorf had failed. It wasn't because her spirit was weak or her arm nerveless, nor because the knife which she carried in her stocking wasn't long enough and sharp enough for her purpose.

Advantageous opportunities for doing the murder and escaping undetected were rare. She had had but one, for Celestia was so surrounded and guarded as a rule that she was hard to come at. Mrs. Gunsdorf had only had one good chance. She had failed then because she had been foolish as to look Celestia in the eyes, and the power to do the wicked deed had been stricken from her.

She didn't have money enough to track Celestia all over the country. (Mary should have provided for this.) But she had done her best.

Now another excellent opportunity seemed to offer.

Mrs. Gunsdorf, Intent on Murder, Crawls Under Celestia's Couch.

Celestia's snow-white train, practically deserted, occupied the sliding. It would be taken off at midnight and run slowly so as to arrive not too early in the chief city of the North Woods.

Mrs. Gunsdorf chose a moment when no one seemed to be looking and boarded Celestia's own car at the observation end. She knew the room in which Celestia slept, and entered it. There were a three-quarter bed of white enamel, a bureau ditto, an armchair and a door ajar that disclosed the white and nickel fixtures of a white tiled bathroom.

The little suite fairly dazzled with its cleanness and its whiteness. If there is anything in contrast, it was a wonderful setting for a bloody crime.

The room offered only one hiding place. Mrs. Gunsdorf knelt, fluttened herself to the floor, and crawled under the couch.

Watch for the next instalment of this wonderful serial in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

Resinol heals itching skins

Advertisement.

REDUCE THOSE DANGEROUS VARICOSE VEINS

Physicians are prescribing and hospitals are using a new and harmless, yet very powerful, germicide which not only causes enlarged or varicose veins and lunches to assume normal, but also reduces goitre, wens, tumors, swollen glands and boils.

Ask any first class druggist for an original two ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply as directed—anything to its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two or three ounces lasts a long time, and furthermore if this wonderful discovery does not produce results, you can have the price refunded.

It is not wise for anyone to allow swollen veins to keep on enlarging. Often they burst and cause weeks of pain, suffering and loss of employment. Start the Moone Emerald Oil treatment as directions advertised and improvement will begin at once. Generous sample by mail for 10 cents from Moone Chemical Co., Rochester, N. Y.

When you know physicians have prescribed Resinol for 20 years in the treatment of itching, burning, unsightly skin eruptions, and have written thousands of reports such as: "It is my regular prescription for itching," "Resinol has produced brilliant results," and "The result it gave was marvelous in one of the worst cases of eczema," doesn't it make it easy to yourself, "that's the right kind of treatment for my skin-trouble?"

Resinol is sold by all druggists.

Why I Married a Second Time

The Man Who Really Fell in Love at Middle Age Tells His Story

By DOROTHY DIX

"I MARRIED a second time," said the Contented Looking Man, for the best and happiest reasons in the world—because I fell wildly, madly, passionately romantically in love with a woman with a love such as no boy is capable of experiencing.

"I was one of the innumerable victims of early marriage. When I was nothing but an immature, undeveloped boy my fancy was caught by a pretty, little pink and white and gold girl, with rosy cheeks and baby blue eyes, and yellow curls.

"We had the same taste in ice cream soda, and our steps matched in dancing, and from these great and unmistakable evidences of mutual sympathy, we decided that we were created for each other, and had been mysteriously brought together by an All Wise Providence.

"It is one of the greatest blessings of poverty that most boys haven't enough money to marry their first sweetheart, and by the time they have accumulated the wherewithal to go to housekeeping on they have recovered completely from their attack of calf love, and so they are saved from wrecking their lives on the rocks of a youthful marriage.

"Unhappily for me, I was an orphan and had come into a large fortune on my twenty-first birthday, so there was nothing to stand in the way of my indulging in any kind of fatal folly to which I felt inclined, and before I was two-and-twenty I had done my best to ruin my life by making an utterly unsuitable marriage.

"Understand me, I am saying nothing against my little child wife —God rest her soul in whatever Heaven she inhabits. She was as she was made, a good, dear, sweet little doll baby, a little girl who stayed sixteen to the end of the chapter, whose interests in the world were bound by her own little circle, and whose aspirations never reached higher than pink candle shades or a new hat.

"She never grew up, and I did grow up. That was our cruel misfortune. She stayed just where she was when we were married, and I went on studying, reading, learning from books and men, getting the bigger and the broader outlook on life—in fact, never ceased developing for me every hour of the day.

"I tried to take my wife with me. I would talk to her of my hopes, and plans and aspirations, but she did not understand and would complain that the things that I was ambitious to do would take me away from home, and that we were so comfortable as we were.

"Not two years after we were married I faced the sphinxlic fact that I had made the most terrible of all mistakes, that I was bound for life to a woman with whom I had not one single thought in common, a woman who could no more be a companion to me than could the Dresden statuette upon the mantelpiece. Worse still, I knew with deadly certainty that my boyish fancy for her had flickered out, and in the light of my manhood's knowledge I realized that I had never really loved her at all. I had only imagined I had.

"I went through years of this hideous mockery of keeping up the pretense of sentiment and happy home and husband, and all the balance of the domestic drama, and then my child wife died just as the gold in her hair was turning to ashes.

"I was left a middle-aged man who had drunk deeply of a bitter cup. I was sadly wise in matters of sentiment, and cynically suspicious of the vagaries of the human heart, and if you had told me that I should ever marry again I should have laughed you to scorn. I had tried it. Never again. Besides, I should have said, "I am too old for romance. That belongs to boyhood, to sweet one-and-twenty, not the cautious forties.

"And then the One Woman came along, and I went down before her like ripe grain before the sickle.

If a Fly Were as Big as a Man

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

KILL a fly, but study him. He is a wonderful creature. A menace and a nuisance.

His muscles are as strong as steel; his nerve action is quick as lightning. If you were proportionately as strong as a fly you could seize a beam over your head with your hands, and, with two tons of iron fastened to your feet, easily raise yourself, together with the attached weight, from the floor.

This calculation is no mere guess; it is based upon experiments made by the Belgian naturalist, Felix Plateau, who harnessed insects, and small animals of many kinds, in very ingenious ways, to ascertain their strength.

Likewise, if a fly were as big as a man, and retained his relative strength, he could kill tigers with his hands and split asunder the jaws of lions with much more ease than Samson did.

If you were as quick as a fly you could let an oncoming express train, traveling a mile a minute, come within a foot of your nose and then dodge it! Strike at a fly that is lazily circling with a playmate before your eyes and observe with what nonchalant ease he avoids your blow and instantly returns to his play.

In fact, the swiftest motion that you can make is to the motive rapidity of the fly as the gait of a strolling frolic to the dash of an athlete in a hundred-yard sprint. It is no more of an effort for the fly to escape than it would be for you to step from in front of a slow-moving steam roller. He would be highly amused if he thought you were trying to hit him.

This quickness of the fly is in itself a proof of the excellence of its muscles. If our muscles were subjected to similarly rapid application of force they would snap like packthreads. And yet a fly is a tender body, and tested by our vastly greater total strength, its members give no indication of extraordinary tenacity. It is of course his slight weight which permits the fly to move so swiftly. If it were composed of material so dense that he equalled a man in weight, his motive power would be unable to lift him, or even to enable him to stand on his legs.

The same method of comparison shows no less interesting results in the case of other small, or infinitesimal, animals. A bee, it has been calculated, is relatively thirty times as strong as a horse. When harnessed to a weight, and compelled to draw it, a bee can exert a pull equal to 180 times its own weight.

Ants and beetles exhibit astonishing strength in their daily work. The little ant-lion will put a pebble on its head, weighing possibly as much as itself, and, with a sudden jerk, project it out of the conical den to a distance equal to a dozen or twenty times the tiny creature's own length. This is as if a man could seize a 150-pound weight, balance it on his head, and with a flip of his neck muscles, hurl it a hundred feet away.

But perhaps the prize for strength belongs to a Mediterranean crab of which I have read, that can support six times its own weight. If a man could do as much he would be able to lift 34½ tons. Even the indolent oyster is a prodigy of muscular power. According to experiments that have been made, it takes a force equivalent to nearly forty pounds to force open the shell of a large oyster. A man endowed with a proportional strength would be able to hold, with his hands, an iron door, against a pull of five or six tons.

The endurance of insects and other small animals against fatigue is equally surprising. Some migrating birds remain on the wing during flights of a thousand or even two thousand miles. Nearly all birds possess immense "wind power." Many can race express trains without getting out of breath. This kind of power is not confined to animals smaller and less weighty than man. Horses can not only outrun human athletes, but they outlast them in wind, although they have several times more weight to carry.

Still, as a general rule, large animals are proportionately less strong than small ones and capable of less continuous exertion. Nature long ago found her upper limit in this respect and showed that she had exceeded it when she allowed the gigantic creatures of former geologic ages to go into extinction. They were too big for the conditions of life on a planet where the acceleration of gravity is 32 feet and a fraction per second.

On Mars, where the acceleration is only 12 feet, the limit is probably higher, and on the moon, with an acceleration of about 5⅓ feet, higher still. Those are the worlds for fat men who would be spry! On the other hand, we have not yet found the lower limit of magnitude for living forms on the earth, though nature doubtless knows where it lies. The microscope still reveals smaller and smaller microbes. And what might not our astonishment be if we could harness a microbe and calculate his relative strength! As to his power of endurance, we know that only too well already!

If a man had the relative strength of a fly he could raise himself by his hands with a weight of two tons on his feet.

If a fly were as big as a man he could kill tigers with his hands and split apart the jaws of lions.

Just Like One of Them

The maid-of-all-work in the service of a family the members whereof are not on the most amicable terms, recently tendered her resignation, much to the distress of the lady of the house.

"So you are going to leave us?" asked the mistress sadly. "What's the matter, Mary? Haven't we always treated you like one of the family?"

"Yis, mum," said Mary, "an' I've ahticed it as long as I'm going to."

The Honeymoon

"What is a honeymoon, father?"

"A honeymoon, my boy, is that time in a man's life when his wife is really supplied with all she wants to wear."

Hoping

"Your symptoms are very obscure. I can't quite make out what disease you are suffering from."

"Oh, doctor I hope it is something new and exclusive."

Household Hints

Silk stockings should never be ironed. Wash them in soapsuds, made with good white soap and lukewarm water, and rinse in clear water of the same temperature. Rough dry.

When a dark serge suit or dress gets shiny, sponge it well with hot vinegar and press it in the usual way. No odor of vinegar will remain.

To polish enamel wool, soak a flannel in a little linseed oil, rub the wood well, then polish with a dry, soft cloth.

To soften water in which flannels are to be washed, allow two teaspoonfuls of glycerine to a tub of water.

To remove the smell of cooked onions from a pot, fill it with boiling water and drop in a red-hot cinder.

When ironing, rub your iron to clean it on a piece of brown paper sprinkled with rough salt.

• • •

When cooking peas, always put a few pods in the pot, as they make the peas taste sweeter.

FRECKLE FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots, How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-Face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength — from any of the Rikers-Hynes Drug Stores, or any druggist, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Advertisement.

When a Child Is Normal

Simple Tests Used to Determine Their Mentality

MOST illuminative are the Binet and Simon tests of intelligence to determine the mental status of children from three to fifteen. If a child responds successfully it is probably normal in intellectual development. But if it can succeed only in the tests arranged for younger children, it is backward.

A child of three should be able to comprehend spoken words and to answer simple questions by a gesture. Ask a child of three, "Where are your eyes?" and it should immediately point to them. A child of three should be able to repeat sentences of six syllables, but not ten. Figures, being more difficult than words, because they do not convey any meaning to a child of three, are limited in the test to two, such as six-four. When shown the pictures which Binet uses in his tests a child of three will enumerate the objects; it is not possible for him to describe any of the action in the pictures.

At four a child should be able to repeat three figures, be able to tell which is the longer of two parallel lines, and be able to name familiar objects when they are displayed.

Among the tests at five years is the comparison of weights. A five-year-old child is able to tell which is the heavier of two blocks equal in size and appearance, but differing in weight. At five all children succeed in counting four. At three no child can count four, and at four only about fifty per cent of the children tested have been able to do so.

At six years a child should distinguish between morning and afternoon, should be able to define known objects and execute three simultaneous commissions. At six, Binet believes that a child's aesthetic perception is sufficiently developed for it to differentiate between beauty and ugliness. For this test Binet employs a picture of six heads of women in three pairs, one of which is pretty and the other ugly or actually deformed.

At seven a child should be able to count thirteen pennies, describe the pictures used in the test for three-year mentalities, instead of simply enumerating the objects; point out what is lacking in unfinished pictures, and name four colors.

Keeping It Clean

A small boy who was sitting next to a very haughty lady in a crowded trainway car kept on sniffing in a very annoying manner. At last the lady could bear it no longer and turned to the lad.

"Boy, have you got a handkerchief?" she demanded.

The small boy looked at her for a few seconds, and then, in a dignified tone, came the answer:

"Yes, I have but I don't lend it to strangers."

BOXING IS BETTER THAN JIU JITSU, DECLARES WILLARD

By JESS WILLARD.

Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt, All Rights Reserved.

OUTSIDE of boxing the French "savate" and the Japanese jiu jitsu are the only two systems of unarmed defence that I know of. In my opinion, boxing has both of them beat a mile.

I mean that any fair boxer can whip any savate crack or any jiu jitsu expert. I believe that he could knock them out before either of them could do much as touch him.

Savate starts out a second rate English fighter went over to Paris and met Charlemont, the savate champion. The boxer was to fight straight Marquis of Queensberry rules, and the Frenchman was to use his feet.

The fighter beat the kicker to a pulp. He knocked his man or side-stepped them, and poured in hooks and jabs and jolts until the French-man was a sight. Three times the referee boldly stopped the fight to let Charlemont untangle his feet.

You don't hear much of savate any more in France. Boxing has wiped it off the map, for the French people need now that the hands were men's natural weapon, and much better than the feet.

In jiu jitsu I've not had a great deal to say. I get to talking about jiu jitsu, and they tell me about a match that had been pulled off between an American wrestler and a Jap expert. I think it was George Bothner. Anyway, the wrestler put it all over the jiu jitsu expert. He slammed him time after time, and was never in danger.

I've made pretty careful study of both systems, and I think there's more bunk in them than anything else. They're fine if a man will only stand still and let himself be kicked or twisted, but in a fight men don't stand still.

Jiu jitsu is built upon the use of the feet. It deals in kicks instead of blows. The savate expert I saw in New York was certainly a marvel at using his feet, and could do a lot of tricks with them. When he delivered his kick, he would swing around on one leg, and shoot the other up sideways.

I saw him kick the yellow off a cigarette that a man was holding in his mouth. He would hit his heel against your jaw or flick the tip of your ear with his toe. As long as you stood still and let him do all the kicking, he was fine.

But a man who knows anything about boxing isn't going to wait while the other fellow kicks him. Either he will jump out of the way, or he will catch the flying foot and dump the kicker on the floor.

Except when you're fighting in close, a kick is the easiest thing in the world to guard against. Then what you've got to watch out for is the hands on the ground.

When a man delivers a kick, it means that he has got to come close, and that his hands are away from his face. It's the job for the boxer to side-step, and then rush in and put his right against the jaw.

It's the same way with jiu jitsu. Almost every one of its holds grow on the theory that the other fellow is a fool who is going to let you do anything with him that you want. I've gone over every one of their tricks, and I can't find one that a boxer couldn't break.

I'll say this about jiu jitsu, though. It's got a great foundation in good hard common sense about eating and drinking. Also in daily training.

The Japanese believe in water, both inside and out. They drink a gallon of water a day, and they think nothing of taking a bath in the morning and at night. That keeps their systems flushed and their pores open.

What poison isn't carried off through the kidneys is washed off instead of being taken into the system again. A lot of American athletes think that baths are weakening. So they are if you get in a tub of hot water and stay there half an hour.

Also like the Jap ideas about eating. They are great on raw cabbage, lettuce, raw onions and even uncooked spinach. There's no doubt that these things are fine for the nerves and also for the digestion.

They go in for fish rather than meat, and that's where I differ from them. I think meat is necessary for the American in Winter at least.

As far as sensible eating, drinking and exercising is concerned, Jiu jitsu is all right. But as a system of defence or attack, I still say that it isn't in the same class with boxing.

One of their favorite tricks is the "arm pinch." You grab the wrist and with one of your hands and then sink the fingers of your other hand into his arm just above the elbow. There are a lot of muscles and nerves there, and the pain is supposed to paralyze the arm.

But what will the man be doing with his other hand? Both of yours are busy and he's got a fist free. What's to keep him from smashing it against your jaw and putting you to sleep?

Another trick is to throw your arms around a man and lock your locked fingers are digging into his spine. At the same time you sink your chin into his chest just above the heart. Then you draw in with your arms and press down with your chin.

There's no question about this being a good hold if the other fellow lets you get it, and then let you keep it. But what's a left for if not to keep off a rush and if he did get the hold, what would you be doing with your two hands?

I gave Wladek Zbyszko the hold on me one day in training quarters and broke it in two seconds. I brought my arms up over his nut my locked hands against his Adam's apple, and it was a five second job before he got to breathing good again.

About the best blow that the jiu jitsu experts have is an edge-of-the-hand blow over the liver. But Nelson used is a good deal, but he saw it with Ad-Wolgast

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Put War Taxes in the Right Place

Let Those Pay Whom War Makes Rich

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

WE have what is called a war tax—rather comic, as we are at peace and the war is sending us hundreds of millions of cash daily.

If we must have a war tax, why not put it on the backs of those who are making hundreds and thousands of millions out of the war?

Why put the one-cent tax on a man who telephones his wife that he is going to be late for dinner, or a bigger tax on one who transfers a piece of real estate injured in value by the war?

Wouldn't it be sensible to put the tax that the war seems to make necessary on individuals and corporations that are making hundreds of millions out of the war supplies?

How would an EXPORT TAX do to solve the problem? Wouldn't it be more just to put a tax on the man who is selling guns, shells and powder to help Europeans murder each other rather than place the tax on people that suffer from war depression?

Those putting up the price of food might carry THEIR share of the war tax load.

We receive a communication from a reader engaged in the beef and provision business, which says:

> "A few days ago the prices of medium cattle were raised from 11¾c. to 12¾c.; calves were advanced 3½c.; sheep, 3c.; lambs, 2c. per pound, etc. While the American public has to stand for these unwarranted advances, the packers empty the freezers into vessels carrying meat to the warring nations. Seventeen hundred live cattle are being shipped to the Italian government alone this week."

This country is shipping horses and mules—thousands of them—to Europe. The poor creatures are destined within a few days after their arrival to lie mutilated, slowly dying on the battlefield, with legs broken. The dollar is mightier than charity, so this cruelty is not forbidden.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to put part of the war tax on those who are exporting horses and mules?

The same reader writes in his letter:

> "It sounds well to write about the prosperity and the increasing credit balance of our country, but if I could have the opportunity to take you personally around in our retail stores in the poorer sections and let you see the women and children purchasing ten cents' worth of soup meat, for probably a large family, you would change your mind as to the much-heralded prosperity."

The suggestion is made, but will it be carried out? Will the war tax actually be laid upon the pockets of those that are making millions of dollars out of the war? NO; THE TAX WILL NOT BE LAID ON THOSE THAT COULD BEST SUPPORT IT.

We are not going to change the ancient system, which is to put the tax on the little man who is too busy to howl, and who has learned by long experience that howling wouldn't do any good.

War Order Profits and the Natural Unrest of Labor

PERHAPS German intrigue and German money have had much to do with bringing on the menacing labor conditions in the arms factories of Bridgeport. Certainly the painstaking care with which the Germans have watched every trick in the war game gives reason to believe that they did not miss so good a chance to embarrass their enemies by shutting off the supply of arms at the fountain head. Labor leaders are not all of such a high order of devotion that a much smaller sum than the $20,000,000, which one alarmist says is to be spent for this purpose, would not, if astutely distributed, set on foot a very bitter labor war in the factories it was desired to close.

Nor is there any reason to criticise the Teutons if they have adopted such tactics. In some ways it is better for them to attack the making of arms than it is to sink the ships carrying the completed weapons—sinking at the same time innocent non-combatant passengers.

The possibility of strikes fomented by foreign influences is simply one of the factors in the business of making arms for belligerents against which those engaged in that business must guard just as they guard themselves against the hazards of bad debts, the unexpected close of the war, or an unreasonable proportion of rejections.

And against these hazards the manufacturers have protected themselves by a most complicated system of checks, credits and guarantees. The question is whether in so guarding themselves they have given decent consideration to the workers' interests.

Labor troubles are not confined to Bridgeport. We read of the revolt of the coal miners of Wales. The dissatisfaction of the English worker in arsenals and munitions shops has brought Parliament to the point of conscripting laborers, even as in time it appears that Great Britain may have to resort to conscription for its soldiers.

In fact, the discontent of labor in the factories of war material is worldwide. And why not?

In our own country no element of patriotism enters into this business. Men are in it for money and are getting big money.

It may very well be, as we have said, that German intrigue has stirred up the workers in the munitions shops. But it would not have been half so easy to foment discontent among them had they been given a fair share of the extraordinary returns of the business in which they are employed.

WHY, THERE'S JOE!
I'M IN ON THIS WALK! THE MORE THE MERRIER
OH, SEE THOSE LOVELY APPLES!
WHY, LULU, I'LL GET YOU ALL THE APPLES YOU WANT! NOTHING IS TOO GOOD FOR YOU!
AFTER YOU HAVE STARTED FOR A WALK WITH THE YOUNG LADY YOU ADMIRE, AND YOUR HATED RIVAL HAS BUTTED IN AND JOINED THE—
AND YOUR HATED RIVAL HAS TRIED TO MAKE A HIT WITH THE YOUNG LADY YOU ADMIRE—
OH, WHAT IS MATTER?
I'VE CAUGHT 'IE, HAVE I?
OH, POOR JOE!
POOR JOE! HAW!

A War Tragedy in a London Hospital

By Arnold Bennett

London, July 3.

WHEN I paid a visit to the chief military hospital in London, an establishment which is the administrative head of thirty-six London hospitals, with accommodation for 3,000 wounded, the exceedingly benevolent colonel-in-charge took me first to the X-ray room, which clearly for him was the heart of the organism. My imagined perspective of a hospital was at once rather violently altered.

The opaque blinds of the laboratory were drawn down, producing black darkness, and my hand was X-rayed is a matter of form; but the interest began with the exhibition of numberless large photographic negatives of heads, shoulders, wrists and other parts of the human body.

In each of these a small, faint blur showed the situation of a projectile which had entered the flesh on some battlefield in France or Belgium. The wounded man, part of whose frame was the subject of the photograph, had been transported to the base hospital in motor and train, across the Channel in steamer, to London in one of the grandiose trains of the War Office, and to the hospital in motor; and his tragedy had suddenly become a speck on a glass plate, or, rather, a speck on two glass plates, for of every suitable wound two photographs are taken.

And the surgeon was professionally less occupied with the man than with these tell-tale plates, which he would hold up in the air in order to peer at them. On a table was a measuring apparatus, with strings and other devices.

"As we take two photographs at different angles," said the Colonel, "it is obvious that the wound must be at the point where the two strings cross each other, and the distance of that point from the surface is automatically shown on this inch-rule, so that the surgeon operating knows exactly where he is."

And we gazed almost passionately at the point where the two strings met, which had neither length nor breadth, which had naught but a geometrical existence—and it was the tragedy of some man lying upstairs. The organization of the German army and the organization of the British army met and cancelled each other out in that intersection of two bits of yellow string—the total impersonalization of war.

More Truth Than Poetry

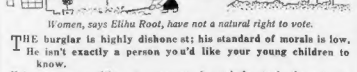
Things as They Are



Women, says Elihu Root, have not a natural right to vote.

THE burglar is highly dishonest; his standard of morals is low,
He isn't exactly a person you'd like your young children to know.
He's most surreptitious in manner; he quietly steals through the streets,
In fact he's distressingly quiet, excepting, of course, when he eats.
His forehead's extremely constricted; his intellect's not very bright,
And yet he's a legal elector; for voting's his natural right.

THE average political heeler is rather addicted to force,
To borrow a vulgar expression, his work is exceedingly coarse.
He scorns oratorical efforts as idle political tricks,
He stands near the polling booth entrance and argues with blackjacks and bricks.
He likes to maim feeble opponents, to wallop and slug and garrote,
And yet he's a prop of his party; his natural right is to vote.

A WOMAN can bring up her children on what a man spends for cigars,
A nice little home she can pay for on half that he lays on the bars.
With never a whine or a whimper, and never a penny for pay,
She works 'round the house and the garden for eighteen full hours a day.
And half of the time, for good measure, she's up with the baby at night;
And yet she's debarred from the ballot—it isn't her natural right!

REMEMBRANCE

WE met and we parted to meet no more;
Her smile was glad and her face was fair;
I remember the cute little boots she wore,
I remember, too that she bobbed her hair.

I LOOKED at her and she looked at me
As we met where the people were rushing past;
She smiled at me sweetly and girlishly,
But I fear that meeting may be our last.

FOR while we paused at the crossing there
My hat blew into the crowded street;
I remember how she bobbed her hair,
I remember the booties upon her feet.

If a Girl Always Said What She Meant

"Will you be mine?" he asked.

"Oh, no, I will not be yours," she replied, "but I don't object to going through the ceremony that will give you the right to work your head off in order to buy me all the clothes and jewelry and social pleasures I want."

Consolation

"I often think," she said, "that I would rather be wedded to a poor man who had chosen me for my own true worth than to be the wife of a rich man who married me for my beauty."

"Well," her friend replied, "if I were you I shouldn't worry much about the danger of being picked out by a rich man for any such foolish reason as that."

THE WATER SPRITE

SHE was emerging from the water
When I caught her;
Adrip from head to toes, she might
Have been some lovely, agile sprite,
Or played the part of Neptune's daughter;
The laughter that was in her look
Repaid me for the chance I took.

NO fairer maiden ever wore
A bathing suit or learned to swim;
I caught her very near the shore,
Her look was glad, her figure trim.
In every curve and every line
Perfection was, it seemed to me;
Because the privilege was mine,
I caught her there beside the sea.

ERE then we two had never met,
Nor ever even guessed we might,
Gladly I caught her, dripping wet,
Her smile was one of keen delight.
I shall not soon forget the deep
Emotion that she stirred in me.
For I possess that which shall keep
Her vivid in my memory.

SHE came resembling Neptune's daughter,
From the water;
Adrip from head to toes, she might
Have been some lovely, agile sprite.
As with my camera I caught her;
The laughter that was in her look
Repaid me for the chance I took.

It Is the Duty of Every Mother To Study Her Children

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company.

WHEN God had formed the Universe He thought
Of all the marvels therein to be wrought,
And to his aid then Motherhood was brought.

"My lesser self, the feminine of Me,
She will go forth throughout all time," quoth He,
"And make my world what I would have it be.

"For I am weary, having labored so,
And for a cycle of repose would go
Into that silence which but God may know.

"Therefore I leave the rounding of my plan
To Motherhood, and that which I began
Let woman finish in perfecting man.

"She is the soil, the human Mother Earth;
She is the sun that calls the seed to earth;
She is the gardener who knows its worth.

"From Me all seed of any kind must spring.
Divine the growth such seed and soil will bring.
For all is Me, and I am everything."

Thus having spoken to Himself aloud,
His glorious face upon His breast He bowed.
And sought repose behind a wall of cloud.

Come forth, O God! Though great Thy thought and good
In shaping woman for true Motherhood,
Lord, speak again; she has not understood.

The centuries pass; the cycles roll along—
The earth is peopled with a mighty throng;
Yet men are fighting and the world goes wrong.

Lord, speak again, ere yet it be too late—
Unloved, unwanted souls come through earth's gate;
The unborn child is given a dower of hate.

Thy world progresses in all ways save one.
In Motherhood, for which it was begun,
Lord, Lord, behold how little has been done.

True Motherhood is not alone to breed
The human race; it is to know and heed
Its holiest purpose and its highest need.

Lord, speak again, so woman shall be inspired
With the full meaning of that mighty word—
True Motherhood. She has not rightly heard.

WHEN anything is the matter with a plant, shrub or tree the horticulturist studies it to find the cause. Then he proceeds to give it such care and attention as will restore it to health and enable it to perform its natural functions in the plant kingdom. When anything is the matter with a machine the mechanic applies himself to study out the cause and to find a remedy.

The dressmaker who cannot make a garment fit sacrifices the time needed for rest and refreshment until she succeeds in her design. Yet everywhere, all over the world, we find parents, fathers and mothers alike, who have undertaken the greatest profession and the most important work in the world, who are blind and indifferent to their obligations, and who make no slightest effort to succeed in developing worth-while men and women out of their boys and girls.

They talk loudly of the great responsibility of parenthood and of the debt their children owe them. They do not stop to consider that they brought these children into the world without asking their consent, and that the mere providing of roof, raiment and food does not constitute all of parenthood.

It is the duty of a parent to study each child with just as great care and patience as the horticulturist studies his plants or the mechanic his machine. And the mother should consider it surely as great an obligation to give careful attention and serious study to a misfit mind in a child as the dressmaker considers it her duty to a misfit garment.

Here is a very interesting illustration of the subject under discussion: A mother asked that her boy be sent to an institution because he was incorrigible. The school teachers gave the boy a good record, both for class work and for behavior, while the mother insisted he was incorrigible. Harold, the boy, was asked for an explanation. Very slowly and reluctantly, but with an air of outrage and indignant rebellion, the boy replied, "She hits me dog."

A few more understanding questions soon brought forth the rest of the story. The puppy was the gift of a neighbor. He was now three months old, a mongrel fox hound, according to Harold. The boy had taught the dog to beg, to shake hands, and to fetch and carry, had built a kennel for him, and by running errands for the corner grocer had earned money for a collar and a leader.

But Harold's mother considered the dog a nuisance, and whipped him frequently. Occasionally Harold's sisters followed her example. And Harold could not stand having Rover beaten.

The mother, when she learned the result of the interview, admitted that since the arrival of the dog her son had given up loafing, for he was too busy now after school in taking the dog walking.

For the sake of her son she agreed to try to like the puppy. She kept her promise, and Harold, his incorrigibility vanished, is at present endeavoring to earn the $2 to obtain a license for Rover.

But for intervention of the right kind this tender-hearted boy might have been made brutal and his life might have been blighted by the short-sighted stupidity of an unthinking mother. It never occurred to her until the idea was beaten into her brain that the boy's attitude toward the little mongrel dog was evidence of a tender quality which needed to be encouraged and cultivated.

It probably has not, even at the present time, occurred to her that little Harold's sentiment for his pet was a much nobler and sweeter one than her own feeling for her child.

There is a vast preponderance of these unthinking, uncomprehending and unsympathetic mothers in the land. Heaven speed the day when eugenic laws will provide the right training, physical, mental and moral, for women before they are permitted to be mothers.

Licenses to Have Children

Dr. Elizabeth Hamilton Muncie's startling plea that the enormously high birth rate among defectives, as compared with normal American families, must ruin our country unless checked.
